The Whisperers.
G. M. Head for Hoover.
What Will Maine Say?
One Real Hero.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

HOW important is a "whispering" campaign? A whisper does not travel far and should receive little attention.

Men whisper when they are ashamed of what they are saying and those that hear do not respect the whisperer.

There was whispering about Abraham Lincoln, some of it taking the form of a statement that Lincoln was married to a colored lady and travelled with her. That did not check his useful career.

SENATOR ROBINSON forces into every newspaper alleged whispers about Gov. Smith that might as well have been ignored, including the silly statement, made public property by Senator Robinson, that "Gov. Smith is a drunkard."

The fact that Mr. Smith has been a hard working governor of New York for four terms is enough answer to such a whisper without official denial.

Wise old Senator Murphy, of Troy, N. Y., used to say, "Never answer ANYTHING, always attack."

ALFRED P. SLOAN, Jr., General Motors' president, says he will vote "for Herbert Hoover and prosperity."

Mr. Raskob, former finance chairman of General Motors, had already come out for Gov. Smith and retired from General Motors.

Mr. Sloan will vote for Hoover and remain General Motors' president.

INTELLIGENT Republican spellbinders will tell their audiences, "Mr. Sloan is for Hoover, because he wants prosperity to last, at least until Americans finish paying for their new cars."

Sloan and Raskob are both able, but there is no doubt that Mr. Sloan offering prosperity will influence more Americans than Mr. Raskob, hoping for wine and beer, "if possible."

Give an American enough prosperity, and his bootlegger will solve his beer and wine problem, also whisky, gin, champagne, Bacardi and liquers, ALAS.

NEXT Monday Maine elects a governor, senator, representatives and Legislature. Each presidential year Maine's election is supposed to show how the nation will go in November.

This year results in Maine will mean less, for Maine voters cannot give information as to what the solid South will do.

Information from the South indicates that the big Democratic problem is there.

LITTLE boys know the names of many heroes, the boy that stood on the burning deck; Wolfe who climbed the Heights of Quebec and died, and many others. Few will hear of Fernand Ducretet.

Ducretet, French, fighting cancer, with the aid of X-rays, was repeatedly warned that his work would cause his death if he continued.

He underwent 18 operations, made necessary by his X-ray work, became partly blind, recovered sight enough to resume work and kept at it. Yesterday it killed him.

If heaven has a special compartment for real heroes, not limited to the kind that kill each other, Fernand Ducretet is there.

DEMOCRATIC and Republican slogans now appear. Have you prepared yours?

Tennessee Democrats choose "Al for all, all for Al."

Republicans use, in some places, "Turn the Raskobs out."

PHILADELPHIA'S mayor orders police to "clean Philadelphia" and "close every one of 13,000 speak-easies" that ornament the city.

If there are 13,000 speak-easies in quiet old Philadelphia, how many are there in New York or Chicago?

THE American Railway Association, to its credit, has barred wooden railway cars after January 1, 1931.

This means orders for 300,000 new steel freight cars, and more work, profit and prosperity for many.

AT THIS election, all native-born American Indians, past 21, may vote.

Our 193 tribes include 340,000 Indians. In old days, according to "Injun fighters," that would have meant a unanimous vote for democracy and firewater. Today's Indian, however, prefers automobiles to whisky.

BEN TURNER, veteran British labor leader, says "beer and betting cost the workmen of England three thousand million dollars every year." Mr. Turner calls it "a waste of our minds and our manhood," and adds, "But we want no Pussyfoot Johnsons."

PGH. DERBY RACER FLYING 2ND

Pittsburgher Second -:- As Air Derbyists Pause Here -:- Off to Pacific!

HA! HA!

Tex Rankin, just one of the boys in the national air derby, flies as Plane No. 13. To show his contempt, his utter contempt, for superstition, he carries as his traveling companion this very black cat. Above are Tex, the cat and Clifford Ball, Bettis Field.

HELLO!

Ted Taney, flying companion of Robert Dake, found his wife waiting at the field here for him when he landed. This as he spent his half-hour in this city before taking off to the west.

FIRST

Earle Rowland, shown here with his mechanic, was first to arrive in Pittsburgh. Above is also his plane, as it lighted on the field. Thirty-seven planes started in New York for Los Angeles.

MOTHER!

When Robert Dake, Pittsburgher, glided into Pittsburgh as second plane in the national air derby, his mother, Mrs. E. J. Dake, Cordova road, met him at Bettis Field, where the touring fliers stopped for a half-hour each.

JURY VICE PROBE IN 2ND WARD LOOMS

THE Peach

THE WEATHER

Mostly cloudy tonight and Thursday; slightly warmer tonight.

196 OFF ON 15-MILE SWIM

TORONTO, Ont., Sept. 5.—One hundred and ninety-six long distance swimmers in quest of fame and fortune in the annual aquatic classic, the Wrigley marathon, were sent off on their 15-mile journey through the ice-cold waters of Lake Ontario at 11 o'clock this morning.

George Young, of Toronto; Norman Ross, of Chicago, and Ernst Vierkoetter, German winner of last year's 21-mile race, jumped into the lead at the start in that order.

At the 3½-mile point Ross led by 300 yards over Young, who suffered a chill on the first lap. Young rested frequently, took nourishment and then dug in as Trainer Walker urged him to retain a lead of 125 yards over Vierkoetter, the German, in third position.

Olive Gatterdam, Seattle, Wash., the only feminine swimmer to start, withdrew from the race before completing half of the first 2½-mile lap. The 16-year-old Westerner, who finished second in the women's 10-mile swim last week, winning a $3,000 prize, could not withstand the icy water.

At the outset the big entry list was reduced as the water forced many to quit.

Balloon Race Thrills Girl

By MRS. WALTER CHAMBERS,
Aide of Capt. H. E. Honeywell in Balloon St. Louis in Race from Altoona.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—Here I am safe in dear old Boston after the most exciting adventure any girl ever had, Miss Earhart included. I met her at Rodgers Field Saturday, but I didn't realize I'd be in her home town so soon.

The biggest surprise I had was to find after we landed at Newburyport, 42 miles north of Boston at noon Tuesday, was that my husband and Capt. Eddie Hill, of Detroit, had come down at daylight near Laconia, N. H. Dr. G. M. Legallee, also of Detroit, landed 40 miles south of Boston about an hour before us.

From the time we left Altoona I was simply thrilled beyond words. Before I had gotten over the cheers the crowd at the speedway gave us I looked ahead and thought we were going to run right into a mountain. Capt. Honeywell thought so, too, because he threw out a bag of sand ballast. This bag threw us up to 3,000 feet and we quietly skimmed over the mountain top only to view our rivals in the flight about five miles ahead.

We passed on up the valley at about the same altitude, leaving Tyrone on our left. After we passed Tyrone we could no longer see the other two balloons on account of darkness. Capt. Honeywell told me that we were going due east and when we saw an electric storm off to our right, he felt sure that Capt. Hill and my husband had gotten into it and probably would wind up

Sleeping Girl Is Wounded

Suffering from scalp wounds, Anna Vogler, 17, 5122 Broad street, is a patient in Allegheny General Hospital. She either cannot or will not tell how she was injured.

The girl informed police that she was a guest of Miss Beulah Wills, 610 Sherman avenue, last night, and that when she awoke at 9 o'clock this morning, blood was dripping from wounds on her head. She declared that Miss Mills and her mother had left for work earlier in the morning.

After an inspection of the room, police said they believed the girl had bumped her head on a piece of furniture.

AUTO KILLS BOY OF 4 RUNNING TO FATHER

WESTON, W. Va., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Rushing from his parents' home to greet his father returning from work in the fields, Wesley Allman, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Allman, of Horner, Lewis county, was killed by the automobile of Homer Dawson, 60, of Buckhannon.

POLITICAL CHIEFS IN CLASH

A grand jury probe of alleged liquor law violations and gambling in the Second Ward, long torn by bitter political feuds, riots and gunplay, looms as a result of disclosures made by a constable yesterday in Criminal Court.

District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today declared he would ascertain what evidence was behind charges of Constable James McManus, attached to Alderman George Anderson's office, and that if it justified, he will ask the court to present the evidence to the grand jury.

McManus, in making his quarterly return, along with other constables in the traditional "Blind Man's Parade," startled the court with his sworn statement setting forth six places in which he said liquor was being sold and 15 places where gambling was going on.

"We shall call Constable McManus in for questioning," said Gardner. "We desire to learn what evidence he has. If the statements made in his return are borne out we will ask the court for a grand jury investiga-

Dake Still 2nd

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Earl Rowland, Wichita, Kas., piloting his Cessna A monoplane in the Class A cross-continental air race, was the first to reach Columbus from McKeesport, where he led the entrants in landing from Roosevelt Field.

Rowland landed here at 11:10 o'clock this morning. He left McKeesport at 9:55 o'clock. The planes and their pilots will remain here tonight, continuing their flight toward Los Angeles at dawn tomorrow.

DAKE STILL SECOND

Robert Dake, Pittsburgh, flying an American Moth, was the second to land at Norton Field, and completed the first day's fight on the cross-country jaunt from New York to Los Angeles. He landed at about 11:20 o'clock. Official times were to be computed and announced later.

W. N. Emery, Bradford, Pa., brought his Travelair to the ground at 11:30 o'clock, the third racing plane to complete the day's hop from New York.

Theodore W. Kenyon, Boston, was the fourth one to land his plane here. Timers clocked the landing of his plane, the Challenger, at 11:56 o'clock.

Other arrivals at Norton Field and their time of landing follows:

Fifth — Joseph S. Charles, Richmond, Va., in the "Alexander Eaglerock," landed at 12:03 o'clock.

Sixth Eugene Detmer, Tarrytown, N. Y., in a Travelair, landed at 12:05 o'clock.

Seventh—Tex Rankin, Portland, Ore., in a Waco, landed at 12:06 o'clock.

ONLY 29 OF 37 DERBY FLIERS ARRIVE HERE

Of the 37 airplanes that hopped off from Roosevelt Field, New York, this morning for the National Air Derby race to Los Angeles, 29 had arrived at Bettis Field, the second stopping place on the route, before many Pittsburghers had finished luncheon, and several had reached Columbus, O., where the night is to be spent, by 2 p. m. today.

Of the eight others, one was forced down at Lebanon, Pa.; two stayed over at Harrisburg because of motor trouble; another alighted at Youngstown, Pa., and four were unaccounted for.

Wild rumors were flying that three planes had come down in a field between Bridgeville and McKeesport, and scout planes had set out from Bettis Field to investigate.

There also was an unconfirmed report that a Burlinger plane, piloted by Paul Bates Charles, of Gettysburg, was down.

One story was that it had been seen alighting in the vicinity of Beaver, but telephone inquiries directed to various points in Beaver county revealed no trace of the craft.

ROWLAND LEADS

Earl Rowland, of Wichita, Kan., flying a Cessna monoplane, was the first of the fliers to arrive at the local port. He alighted at 10:25 and was off again after the 30 minutes of rest allowed by the regulations of the contest.

Robert Dake and Ted Taney, both of Pittsburgh, arrived six minutes later in their American Moth monoplane, the second machine in.

Rowland was first and Dake and Taney were in second place, on the arrival at Columbus also.

S. H. Turner, of Alexandria, Va., reported on his arrival at Bettis Field that he saw George W. Hopkins, pilot of a Stinson-Warner plane, alight in a field near Youngstown, Pa. Turner said he descended to see if Hopkins was in serious trouble, but, on finding that he was only experiencing difficulty with his engine, left him and continued here.

Field attaches announced that a few minutes after he had hopped off from Bettis Field before noon, Joseph A. Nowicki, of Detroit had been forced down at Boston, near McKeesport. Nowicki's forced descent straightened out confused reports that Warren B. Smith was piloting his ship.

Leslie C. Miller, of Los Angeles, who arrived at Bettis Field at 1:37:02 p. m. in his Lincoln-Page, explained that he was behind most of the others because a break in his oil line had forced him down while about a half-hour of flying distant from Pittsburgh. He managed to patch the repair himself.

Dake was met at the field by his mother, Mrs. E. J. Dake, of 1255 Cordova road, and Taney was welcomed by his wife.

The third arrival was W. H. Emery, Jr., of Bradford, who flew a Travelair monoplane, a white craft with a golden tail.

OFF AGAIN!

Rowland set out at 10:58 for Columbus, O., where the fliers stop overnight.

Dake and Taney made the flight from Middletown to Bettis Field in an hour and 38 minutes.

OTHER ARRIVALS

The fourth arrival was Theodore W. Kenyon, of Boston, in a Challenger biplane. His time of arrival was 10:56.09 a. m.

Others arrived in the following order:

James S. Charles, of Richmond, in an Alexander Eagle Rock, arrived 11.01.03 a. m.

Tex Rankin, of Portland, Ore., in a Waco monoplane; arrived 11.09.32 a. m.

Eugent J. Detmer, of Tarry-

Watching Fliers in Air Derby

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 5.—Edward Rowland, of Wichita, Kan., piloting a Cessna model, was likely to be $1,500 richer today after reaching Norton Field here, on the first night control of the transcontinental air derby. He led 37 contestants who left Roosevelt Field, New York, at intervals since dawn this morning.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—One of three planes in the cross-country air race that landed here today, was the Stinson, Jr., piloted by George W. Hopkins. After repairing a broken oil feed, Hopkins took off for McKeesport for a fresh start. The other two, one a Swallow and the other a Berliner, hopped off for McKeesport, with only a brief stop, and the names of the pilots could not be verified.

George W. Hopkins, flying a Stinson-Warner, arrived at Bettis Field at 2:22:40 p. m. He reported that he developed engine trouble a half hour out of Harrisburg, and was so absorbed in attending to it that he got off the course and alighted at Youngstown, O.

H. A. Speer, flying an International plane was forced out of the race at Middletown, Pa., by engine trouble.

D. H. Davis, in a Travelair plane, was reported down near Lebanon, Pa., by a leaky oil line, and was eliminated from the contest.

The utmost confusion surrounded the arrival and departure of the planes at Middletown, and officials in charge of the checking of arrivals and departures were unable to furnish the names of the planes and pilots as they arrived. They had only 32 entries listed in the race, 31 of whom have arrived safely. State police reported that one plane was forced down near Harrisburg, but the officials here were unable to verify the report.

All the pilots reported that they had considerable difficulty locating the Middletown field because of early morning mists that made visibility poor.

VOTERS' RUSH TO PAY TAXES BREAKS RECORD

Presaging a heavy registration tomorrow in Pittsburgh, McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton, the rush of voters to be assessed and registered continued unabated today.

This is the last day to be assessed. The office of Delinquent Tax Collector Walter J. Christy, with 30 cashiers and as many assessors on duty, will be open tonight as long as any citizen is waiting to secure tax receipts.

The rush is without precedent in local political history. Christy estimated that yesterday nearly 5,000 voters paid taxes in his office.

Tomorrow is the first registration day in Pittsburgh and the three third-class cities. The polling places in Pittsburgh will be open from 8 a. m. to 11 a. m. and from 5 p. m. to 11 p. m., daylight saving time. In McKeesport, Duquesne and Clairton the polling places will be open from 8 a. m. to 10 a. m., from noon until 3 p. m. and from 5 p. m. until 11 p. m., daylight saving time.

HOOVER GETS 2 TO 1 IN PHILA.

Herbert Hoover has further increased his lead in the Pennsylvania straw vote canvass conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

By capturing a compelling Philadelphia majority, nearly 2-to-1, in the day's returns, the Republican candidate runs his lead to 465 with total returns nearing 12,000.

Hoover continued to be a favorite in Philadelphia, gaining a substantial lead chiefly through feminine support, but Smith polled an unusual vote in the rural districts, practically even with the Republican candidate, who has been running strongly in rural areas.

Women have been filing unusually large returns in the straw canvass, particularly in Philadelphia in support of Hoover.

The totals in the Pennsylvania poll, conducted in connection with the nation-wide canvass by the Hearst papers, are as follows: Hoover, 6,079, including 3,743 men and 2,336 women; Smith, 5,614, including 3,565 men and 2,049 women.

In 1924 these voters voted as follows: Coolidge, 7,947, including 4,879 men and 3,068 women; Davis, 879, including 635 men and 244 women; LaFollette, 1,127.

FRENCH FLIERS QUIT FLIGHT TO AMERICA

PARIS, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A Havas dispatch from Casablanca, Morocco, says the French trans-Atlantic flight aspirants, Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, returned to Casablanca today after a flight of an hour and 45 minutes. They had hopped off with their backer, Armond Lotti, for St. Louis, Senegal.

The dispatch said they would probably return to Paris. A sigh of relief went up from the aviation fields around Paris last night when news came that the "kid sergeants," Jean Assolant and Rene Lefevre, had ended their big transoceanic adventure with a safe landing at Casablanca, Morocco, at 4:40 p. m., this was 9 hours and 36 minutes after their plane, "The Yellow Canary," had hopped from Le Bourget Field.

Neither aviation experts nor the Paris man in the street had taken the attempt seriously. They were fearful, however, that the young fliers would come to grief, as it was believed that their daring outweighed their experience, especially in the art of navigation.

Announcement said that the plane landed because of a leak in the oil lines. There was no explanation for their presence in Africa after they had started ostensibly for New York and had sent messages to representatives in the United States, asking that arrangements for a landing be made at Mitchel Field, Long Island.

SECOND WARD WAR

tion and indictment of those guilty of violating the law."

In making his return McManus, who is allied with the Anderson-McManus faction which is opposing that headed by P. J. O'Malley, violated the age-old tradition that constables should see no evil, hear no evil and, especially when it came time to report to the court, speak no evil.

Liquor is being sold, McManus reported, at Carlton Terrace, Liberty avenue and Tenth street; the Waiters' Club, 1613 Liberty avenue; the Order of Owls, 644 Penn avenue; the Order of Oaks, 929 Liberty avenue; the Young Men's Republican Tariff Club, Sixth and Liberty avenues, and at Thomas Curran's, 509 Wylie avenue.

He said there was gambling, chiefly by slot machines, at the Musical Club, 804 Penn avenue; Alpern's restaurant, Eighteenth street; W. Digler, 1715 Penn avenue; Abe Boskin, Seventeenth street and Penn avenue; William Shipera, 1919 Penn avenue; Frank Sutton, 520 Wylie avenue; James Lancer, 805 Wylie avenue; Foglia & Martonella, 704 Wylie avenue; Claridge Hotel, 966 Liberty avenue; Homer Lane's Hotel, Liberty avenue; Martin Noon's Motel, Ninth street, and at the Carlton Terrace, Walter's Club and Order of Oaks.

The gun battles of last year occurred when the O'Malley and McManus factions combined to elect James McManus constable over Barney McKenna, who had the support of the Anderson faction.

Shortly after that election the McManus-Anderson groups combined against O'Malley, electing Owen McManus the Republican ward chairman. He was not recognized, so far as "privileges" and patronage were concerned, by the city administration and the report made by McManus yesterday is regarded as retaliation.

The fight for the memberships on the registrations in 10 of the 11 districts of the ward was intense while it lasted. Each faction filed its nominees for the Republican places, while two sets also appeared for the Democratic places. For several days the situation resulted in a deadlock which has been broken by practically dividing the places.

Members of the registration board said today that they had tried wherever possible to put two persons from each faction on the board in each district.

4 Bandits Rob Loan Heads

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—Police are seeking four nattily dressed bandits today who robbed the directors of the Mt. Airy Building and Loan Association of about $3,000 last night.

The bandits crept up the stairs to the meeting room on the second floor and three of them leveled guns at the occupants of the room while the four scooped up the money lying on the table before the group.

HOOVER PLANS RAID ON SMITH STRONGHOLDS

WASHINGTON, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Now that Herbert Hoover has definitely decided to carry the political warfare to the home ground of his opponent, Alfred E. Smith, he is seriously considering a march upon the very rampart of Democracy, the Solid South.

The pressure for him to make a trip into that section is almost as great as was that for him to visit Newark and New York city, where he will speak on September 17 and October 17, respectively. He probably will yield to it by going either to North Carolina or Tennessee for one speech near the dividing line between the two states.

CHANCE IN SOUTH

Some recent callers at the Hoover headquarters have told the Republican presidential nominee that there is more than a possibility that he can break the solid South for the first time since reconstruction days and have urged that he make a special campaign tour into that territory.

Hoover has been inclined to discount some of the reports that have come to him regarding the situation in Virginia, North Carolina and Georgia and he probably will wait for a greater crystallization of sentiment before he reaches his final decision. He has limited himself to a few speaking trips and naturally his desire is that these should take him where his personal appearance might be expected to do his cause the most good.

Beyond a general statement that he will devote much of his Newark speech to a discussion of labor questions, Hoover declines to forecast what subjects he will discuss there or in New York city. Since immigration would strike a responsive cord in that section, it may be that he will elaborate on his acceptance speech pronouncement on that subject.

Hopes of party leaders in the cities and towns adjacent to those in which the nominee will speak that he would make automobile tours through them and perhaps say a few words have been blasted by Hoover himself. He has decided against such side excursions both in the East and in the other section of the country where he will appear.

Al's Aides Barred by W.C.T.U.

CLEVELAND, Sept. 5.—Any woman who supports Al Smith for President cannot remain a member of the Cuyahoga County Women's Christian Temperance Union, Women who are now members, and who are known to be Smith sympathizers, will not be permitted to pay dues.

This edict went into effect today following the fifth annual one-day convention of the Cuyahoga County W. C. T. U. here yesterday. Mrs. Annie Mendenhall introduced the motion, which was passed, authorizing presidents of local unions to refuse dues from persons who lend aid to wet candidates.

"The nation has not faced such a crisis since Abraham Lincoln's time," Mrs. Mendenhall asserted. "But why waste time on Al Smith when we have a man as clean and upright as Abe Lincoln himself in Herbert Hoover."

in Philadelphia. We thought that until Tuesday night, when my husband rang my room here in the hotel at Boston. When I found out that he and Capt. Hill had gone up to 15,000 feet and had passed through the storm and into a wind which blew them at 50 miles an hour into the northeast.

I can think of nothing as interesting as that ride all night above the clouds which looked more than anything else like we might be flying over the North Pole in great wastes of snow. Two or three times during the night I thought the clouds were the ocean.

According to our compass we traveled due east to Easton, Pa., where we threw off some sand and climbed to 7,800 feet and struck a wind that turned our course to the northeast.

It was here that I first saw the moonlight on the clouds. They were so soft and downey looking that I wanted to jump out and go to sleep in them. About three in the morning we passed New York but we were west of the city and I did not get to see how it looked at night. We passed a lot of towns where the lights blinked up at us and where everything was so quiet we could hear dogs barking and crickets chirping.

Capt. Honeywell said that the dogs could see us even though we were a mile in the air. I wondered what the people sleeping down in the homes would think if suddenly a flash of lightning would show to them a great big gas bag floating above the house. I wondered where the other balloons were and I watched for them all the night, but never did see them until about 7 o'clock in the morning, about a thousand feet below us and five miles ahead we recognized Dr. Legallee's balloon.

We were then over the Connecticut River valley in Connecticut, and we raced with him in about our approximate positions until about 9:30. Then he swung off to our right and landed near Lowell, Mass.

SIGHT OCEAN

We had found out by then that we were within 30 miles of the coast and could see the ocean in the distance. We flew then along the coast line until about 2:30, when the winds started blowing us out over the ocean.

"Well, little girl, I guess we had better land," Capt. Honeywell said.

He reached up and pulled the cord. I heard a gasping sound from the top of the balloon, and the ground seemed to fly up toward us.

"We are going to make a soft landing," the captain said as we came within a few hundred feet of the ground.

But just then what I later learned was an under current of air caught us and we smashed into the top of a giant tree. The captain pulled out a bowie knife and slashed the cord holding our great 3501-foot drag rope to the side of the basket. It flopped to the ground. The balloon whirled around and around and finally cleared from the tree. Then he grabbed hold of another cord—a red one—and the whole top of the balloon came out.

We dropped to the ground and then bounced back again and then we jumped over the field like a rabbit. Finally we came to a stop and the great gas bag, with all the gas gone, crumpled and fell beside us. My first balloon ride was over.

LA FOLLETTE FOE WINS FOR GOVERNOR

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A businessman was chosen as the Republican nominee for Governor of Wisconsin when Walter J. Kohler, a conservative, seeking office for the first time, defeated three other candidates, including Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman and Representative Joseph D. Beck, Progressive, backed by Senator Robert M. LaFollette.

The vote in 2,285 precincts out of 2,760 was:

Beck 164,483; Ferris 3,337; Kohler 188,897; Zimmerman 69,909.

VICTORY ASSURED

Although returns were incomplete Kohler had rolled up such a big lead that his victory over Beck, his closest opponent, was assured as returns from yesterday's primary continued to come in.

Governor Zimmerman, seeking a second term, and John E. Ferris, of Milwaukee, candidate of the Wisconsin government council, were eliminated early in the race. The governor, who two years ago defeated the progressive and conservative candidates by drawing strength from both factions, suffered the worst defeat ever administered to a state executive in more than 40 years.

Senator LaFollette, the baby of the United States senate when elected three years ago to fill the seat vacated by his father who died in 1925, was nominated with a big majority, "Young Bob" was given almost a two to one majority over George M. Mead, conservative Republican, whose showing was regarded as remarkable in view of his playing a lone hand and entering the race only four weeks before the primary.

The vote in 2,223 precincts out of 2,760 was:

LaFollette 250,064; Mead 129,430.

37 HOP OFF IN DERBY

off at one-minute intervals, hundreds of spectators watched the planes dash across the runway and then lift gracefully into the gray skies of early morning.

Daniel R. Robertson, piloting a Curtiss Robin, started second, and was followed by Leslie C. Miller in a Curtis Page.

The first plane was started by Miss Viola Gentry, of New York, who waved a handkerchief from the window of a building near the field when a pistol fired by Mayor George E. Cryer, at Los Angeles, was heard through a trans-continental telephone connection.

The planes zoomed into the sky, circled and dived over the field, got their bearings, straightened out and flew full speed for the west. As the planes left the field they were checked by official timers.

According to the rules of the race each plane must remain 30 minutes in all but night stops, and any plane failing to reach the night control city by 3:30 p. m. will be ruled out of the race.

The race today was limited to commercial planes carrying two or more passengers, with motors not exceeding 90 horsepower. The winner, the plane credited with the best elapsed time, will receive a cash prize of $5,000. Other prizes ranging from $2,500 to $3,000, will be awarded in this class—A.

Starting tomorrow at dawn, the planes will leave Columbus, O., on the second lap of the race to Mines Field, Los Angeles. Other stops scheduled in the race are Terre Haute, Ind.; St. Louis, and Kansas City, Mo.; Wichita, Kan.; Oklahoma City, Fort Worth, Abilene, Midland, Hecos and El Paso, Tex.; Lordsburgh, N. M.; Tucson and Yuma, Ariz., and San Diego. Night stops will be made at Kansas City, Fort Worth, El Paso and Yuma.

ENGINEERING COMPANY MOVES TO YOUNGSTOWN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Sept. 5.—The Aetna Standard Engineering Company is consolidating its engineering forces here, and will move its Ellwood City (Pa.) organization to Youngstown, it was announced last night. R. C. Steifel of Ellwood City continues with the company as vice president and consulting engineer.

Balloon Safer Than Truck, Pilot Finds

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 5.—Capt. H. E. Honeywell, veteran balloonist who landed near here Tuesday after a flight from Altoona, has decided ballooning is safer than driving a truck. While aiding drivers to unload his balloon at the Newburyport, Mass., railroad station today, Capt. Honeywell slipped and fell from a four-foot platform to a concrete walk, spraining his wrist and ankle. His foot and hand bandaged, he started for his home in St. Louis today.

MT. WASHINGTON ROAD CONCRETE O.K.'D

Do You Want to Vote? -:- County Folk Rush to Be Assessed -:- Last Chance Today!

LAST DAY!

Today at the county treasurer's office, in the court house, is the last on which Mr. and Mrs. Allegheny County can be assessed for the taxes that will make them eligible to ballot in the coming presidential election.

RUSHES

This area is concerned over its enfranchisement, this photograph would show. Even Miss Allegheny County expects to cast her ballot.

OCTOBER

After today's rush is over and the assessors' work becomes normal again, there will be a month in which the taxes can be paid. The last day for payment will be October 6. These folks waited a long, long time for "evaluation."

MT. WASHINGTON ROAD CONCRETE O.K.'D

The concrete in the Mt. Washington roadway bridge exceeds the specified strength and the "honeycombing," cause of a councilmanic investigation, is a surface condition only, the Pittsburgh Testing Laboratory reported today to Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang.

The honeycombing, according to the report, is due to the concrete's not being sufficiently workable to puddle completely around the reinforcing steel and against the forms. Some evidence of undersanding, uneven grading and an excessive amount of flat stone, such as is produced by what is known as gyratory crushing, was noticed in the investigation conducted by the laboratory.

RECOMMENDS REPAIRS

The laboratory recommended that all sections showing honeycombing on the surface should be cut to solid concrete to prevent future disintegration, given a coat of cement and filled with retempered concrete.

More care in the selection of mixtures, more attention to the fixing of the steel in place and the use of trained labor and expert inspectors was recommended, the report stating:

"It is a mistake to permit work of this kind to proceed except under the supervision of inspectors trained in the art, who have a basic knowledge of the reasons for the scientific control of the operation."

The need of expert workmanship is stressed also in a report submitted to Director Lang by W. D. Skidmore, of the Chicago Paving Laboratory, who investigated paving here.

URGES TRAINING

"A week or two of concentrated training under a specialist to educate the gangs to correct recognition of fundamentals," is recommended by Skidmore. "The city should be setting the pace for contractors as far as good workmanship is concerned. Efficient operation of city gangs cannot, of course, be had unless those in charge have authority to employ and discharge men in accordance with merit. One lazy, careless, inefficient rollerman or raker in a gang can very easily break down the morale of the whole unit, when the other men see in spite of his poor work he remains on the crew."

Skidmore, in his report, expressed the opinion that "there is no better or more economical pavement than a well-built asphalt pavement for all around general use." He suggested sheet asphalt rather than asphaltic concerete.

The Chicago expert, who criticized severly the majority of 20 or more asphalt jobs he investigated, urged that the activities in the asphalt plants and those in the construction gangs be closely co-ordinated, saying that many poor jobs are due to a failure to recognize this fundamental.

"Talkies" May End Strike

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Three hundred outlying Chicago movie houses last night experienced another silent night as far as orchestras were concerned when both exhibitors and musicians stood firm on their respective claims which yesterday caused a walkout of organists, and orchestra players.

The exhibitors held a meeting to discuss the feasibility of installing "talkies" and giving the audience "canned" music with prospects that several of the smaller houses might make the device permanent. Some of the operators explained the musicians' demands for full time orchestras of more players than were being used would force them to eliminate the musicians or go bankrupt and that the installation of canned music was their only recourse.

Officers of the musicians' union, who were restrained by a Federal Court injunction last week from calling a strike but who obtained an opinion from attorneys that this did not prevent the musicians from walking out as individuals, offered no statements today and indicated they would have none pending disposal of the injunction proceedings next wek.

20 Months' Old Boy Climbs 16-Foot Ladder

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 5.—The youngest ladder climber in Venago county was discovered. The father of Glenn Bleakley, 20 months old, whos parents reside at Barkeyville, 12 miles south of here on the Pittsburgh road, had placed a 16-foot extension ladder against the barn while putting on a new roof. At work, he turned around and found the youngster crawling along the roof.

The ladder did not quite reach the roof.

After the father had recovered his breath, he carried the young fellow to safer ground.

LEVINE SAILS LEAVING HIS PILOTS IN HANDS OF LAW

CHERBOURG, France, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Charles A. Levine caught his boat for home last night, but he left behind him in an embarrassing position his pilot, Bert Acosta, two Dutch test pilots and even his new plane, so bravely designated "Queen of the Air."

The four men had flown from Paris and arrived at the aviation field at Querqueville at 5:20. The gendarmes inquired somewhat icily where the log book and passports were that French air regulations require all planes to carry.

The explanation of "got to catch a ship" failed to satisfy them as far as Acosta and the Dutch pilots Mencken and Wickham were concerned, and they were detained pending verification of their identities. "The Queen of the Air" also was remanded to the surveillance of the gendarmes.

A somewhat flurried Levine dug hastily through his baggage and finally uncovered his passport. An automobile carried him to the Leviathan in plenty of time to board the liner before she sailed at 10:30.

It is understood that the gendarmies, having won their point, will permit Acosta to fly the plane back to Le Bourget today.

SLIGHT EARTHQUAKE SHAKES LOS ANGELES

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—A slight earthquake of about 15 seconds' duration shook the downtown district of Los Angeles at 6:40 a. m. today.

YOUTH NABBED IN STORE

A. Hoechstetter strolled past his confectionery store at 6122 Center avenue early today and discovered some one in the place making a selection of goods. He summoned police.

In a rear room police say they found Henry Mastrangle, 18, of Mount Pleasant, Pa. After talking to Mastrangle, police arrested Philip Scarpino, 18, of 5818 Ellsworth avenue, and Julius Medernow, 18, of Cleveland, at the Scarpino home, whom Mastrangle is said to have implicated in the attempted robbery. The three were held for court in Morals Court today.

Weather Conditions.

The high pressure area, yesterday morning centered over Missouri, developed eastward and is now central over Eastern Pennsylvania, having increased in pressure to 30.40 inches at Philadelphia.

Pressure is relatively low in the eastern Gulf region, 30.00 inches at Mobile, and rain is falling today in Virginia, North Carolina, Eastern Tennessee and portions of Alabama and Georgia. Rain has fallen along the coast from Virginia to the southern tip of Florida. Charleston reporting 3.34, Raleigh 1.98, and Norfolk 1.88 inches.

Except in the Middle and South Atlantic and east Gulf states and portions of the Southern Plains states, the weather has been generally fair.

Temperatures are higher in the upper lakes, Upper Mississippi valley and Central Rocky Mountains, while they are somewhat lower in the Middle and North Atlantic states.

River Conditions.

The rivers have changed but little in the last 24 hours. The stage at Pittsburgh is 10.3; Dam No. 2, 8.5, and Dam No. 6 7.2 feet. The dams are up. The rivers will change but little.

SHADY AVENUE WOMAN, HURT BY FALLING, DIES

PLANE CRASH KILLING 7 INVESTIGATED

International News Service.

POCATELLO, Ida., Sept. 5.—State and county authorities were expected to launch a joint investigation today into the tragic airplane crash killing seven here yesterday.

The tragedy occurred when Pilot Paul Wheatley, of Salt Lake City, attempted to land his tri-motored Universal-Fokker plane at the municipal airport here. It is believed Wheatley banked too sharply into a strong wind.

COMBINATION PLANE

It was a combination mail and passenger plane, designed to carry six persons besides the pilot. All seats were occupied. Wheatley and four passengers were killed outright, the other two dying en route to a hospital.

The passengers killed were:

Mrs. Lawrence Schaper, of Salt Lake City, and her two children, Paul 6, and Ramona, 18 months.

W. A. McLean, treaveling representative for Liberty magazine.

James F. Richards, secretary of the Ogden (Utah) Chamber of Commerce.

M. A. Timmerman, Ogden newspaperman.

The plane was owned and operated by the National Park Airways, Inc. It was a regular air mail plane, the operating company having been awarded a contract a month ago. The plane was en route from Great Falls, Mont., to the northern terminus, to Salt Lake City, the southern end of the route.

McLean and the baby were alive when taken from the wreckage of the plane, but so badly injured that they died before reaching the local hospital.

The plane did not catch fire after the crash, and the rescue work was begun almost at once.

The bodies were removed to the local morgue, and the coroner immediately began an investigation. The initial inspection of the wreckage did not reveal the cause of the accident.

Spur Hunt For Dapper Slayer

Determined that the murderer of Dr. Harry Dapper, Carrick physician, must be captured and punished, District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner today will detail additional detectives to the case, although virtually every county sleuth now has some angle of the case to investigate.

Gardner mapped out plans for a more thorough investigation yesterday during a conference with Chief George W. Murren of the county detectives.

The information, which was uncovered by Roy Barclay, private detective, was given to Gardner yesterday. The sleuth and the district attorney talked over the various angles of the case and those that Barclay has investigated and found promising.

County Detective Frank Ritz returned from Chicago yesterday after a fruitless search for the murderer. Working on the theory that the physician had been slain by a gunman hired by a bootleg ring and that the slayer was from Chicago, Ritz was sent to that city. He found the man, an innocent Chicago shipping clerk, who had been in Rankin a few days previous to the murder. He also visited Jerseyville, Ill., where the missing car was thought to have been seen.

MISSIONARY TREASURER MISSING, SO ARE FUNDS

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Partial audit of the books of Clinton S. Carnes, missing treasurer of the Baptist Home Mission Board "discloses the possibility of a shortage in a large amount," said a joint statement issued by the board and the executive committee of the Southern Baptist convention here yesterday following an all-day meeting.

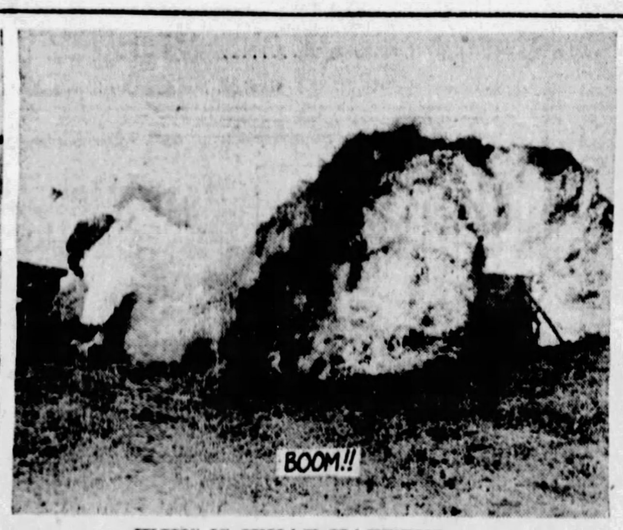
The missing treasurer was heavily interested in Atlanta real estate and business property. Carnes was bonded for $50,000 and the board said the surety company had been notified and "all other steps to protect the interest of the board and the denomination are being taken."

"The firm which has been auditing the accounts of the former treasurer of the home mission board of the Southern Baptist convention, missing since August 15," the statement said, "has made to us on this date a provisional report necessarily incomplete and subject to revision and correction because of the lack of time in which to make a final complete investigation, which report discloses the possibility of a shortage in a large amount."

Record Crowd -:- At Cambria County -:- Annual Fair

ALWAYS THERE

Charles M. Schwab, steel baron, never forgets his home county during fair season. He attended Cambria County fair at Ebensburg Labor Day, and is shown greeting some of his friends.



THIS IS WHAT HAPPENS

The United States Bureau of Mines thrice daily demonstrated at the fair, just how a mine explosion occurs. A mine entry was reproduced above ground and coal dust introduced into the air, and ignited. Smoke and flame belched out. This exhibit was watched with interest by hundreds who attended fair.

THE FIRST RACE

A record crowd was on hand as the ponies lined up. In the grandstand was every type of race fan from the "tip" burdened professional to the amateur who picked horses by guesswork. The first race was won by Sol, whose time was 1:01⅘.

BEFORE PARADE TIME

Creekdale Mina, a prize winner at the fair, is enjoying a bath. Some of the finest livestock to be found in the country is entered in the Ebensburg fair. Owners took pains to bring out their stock's best points.

AFTER MORE HONORS

This winner of the junior reserve championship at Columbus, O., is after more ribbons. He is owned by E. G. Little, of Dresden, O. Miss Louise Edwards, of Ebensburg, is posing him.

GRAIN STATES FAVOR HOOVER

RECENT GAINS TILT SCALE, DESPITE HOSTILE SPOTS

By CHARLES N. WHEELER,
Noted Political Analyst.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—With the exception of Wisconsin, Mr. Hoover's stock has risen slightly in the past few days in the mid-western states, which comprise the heart of the wheat and corn belt.

These nine states, with their electoral votes, are: North Dakota, 5; South Dakota, 5; Nebraska, 8; Kansas, 10; Iowa, 13; Minnesota, 12; Illinois, 29; Indiana, 15, and Michigan, 15; a total of 112.

Both the nation-wide poll by the Hearst newspapers and reliable information from impartial observers point to at least a temporary reversion of the so-called farmer revolt of a month ago.

Unless a considerable reaction favorable to Gov. Smith should develope as the campaign warms up, this entire block of bread basket commonwealths probably should be placed definitely in the Hoover column.

There is no gainsaying the fact that there are bad spots—very bad—for the Republicans in several of these states. But even in these sections the grumbling that continues is not so vehement.

Trekking back to the old G. O. P. homestead is discernible in the entire agrarian territory, although enthusiasm of the prodigals is not ecstatic.

Present information discloses that not only Illinois but all of the other eight states in the bread basket area are still dry, notwithstanding the surface indications of wetness to the point of saturation in some of the larger cities, particularly Chicago.

Well-informed observers, meantime, insist to this writer that the wets are going to be surprised with even the Chicago vote in November.

They point out that only a very small percentage of business men, even though not averse to getting on the outside of a highball at the nineteenth hole, will suport the wet cause, and purely for business reasons.

Outside of Chicago, the dry issue is one of the strongest arguments the G. O. P. will have, down-state leaders report. The total vote in Cook county four years ago was 934,728. In the state outside of Cook county the total vote was 1,535,339.

Senators Help

The backbone of the agrarian revolt in the Northwest is reported to have been broken by the forthright pronouncement for Mr. Hoover by Senators Nye and Frazier in North Dakota and Senator Norbeck in South Dakota. In North Dakota the Nonpartisans and Independents are together for the first time since 1916 when Frazier was first elected Governor. The repercussion has had a strong effect in South Dakota, the reports show.

Senator Schall of Minnesota has thus far refused to follow the Nye-Frazier proposal. Other Republicans of some standing are veering toward the Tammany tent, while Senator Henrik Shipstead, running as a Farmer-Labor candidate, is piling new fuel on the farmer bonfire. There is, too, the big LaFollette following of four years ago that has not as yet been very thoroughly appraised.

In this connection, it is pointed out that President Coolidge, four years ago, polled a majority over the combined LaFollette and Davis vote of about 25,000. His plurality over Davis was 364,846, and over LaFollette 81,567.

Scouts from the Northwest bring the news that in their opinion Hoover is stronger in Minnesota than was Coolidge, with the exception of a few bad farm spots. The Scandinavian voters, they report, are swinging almost solidly to Hoover.

Kansas Certain

Kansas is nailed down for Hoover. The Democrats will not make a serious fight there.

Iowa, owing to the unequivocal stand for Mr. Hoover by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, one of the farmers' ablest protagonists; the intelligent support given the former secretary by Dante Pierce, the country's most influential farm periodical publisher, and the dry issue, the scouts report, will be for Hoover on November 6, although Gov. Smith will get a much larger vote than that polled by Mr. Davis.

Michigan also is definitely given Mr. Hoover. The Democrats will not make much of a fight there, except in Detroit. This state was for Mr. Hoover in the 1920 presidential primary, the Democrats joining with the Republicans in that appeal to the country.

In the purely state and local contests, the Democrats are given a fighting chance in Indiana by all the scouts, but on the national issue the preponderance of reliable information, supported by the straw-vote, points to Hoover.

Nebraska was carried by Coolidge with a plurality of 81,296 over Davis, but Davis and La Follette together rolled up a plurality over Coolidge of 25,405.

Senator George Norris is a thorn in the Republican side, but Gov. McMullen is following the lead of former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, in taking a seat on the running board of the Hoover bus.

The best information obtainable at this writing is, that while they are going to have a real battle in Charley Bryan's state, Hoover has the edge, both as to experience and the dry issue.

The reports from the state are that whatever Charley may do or say in this fight, the big Bryan following of the commonwealth can never be corralled by the Tammany farmers.

While these states probably will land in the Hoover column on November 6, if present indications are trustworthy, Gov. Smith is going to poll the largest popular vote in all these states given a Democratic presidential candidate in a long time.

STREETS OF STEEL IN CITIES SUGGESTED

Steel plates are suggested for street paving in large cities. The initial cost, it is believed, would be more than offset by the saving in repairs. Water pipes, telephone wires, etc., could be laid beneath removable plates, thus saving the cost of digging up the streets.

School Teacher Quickly Gains 18 Pounds and New Energy

New YEAST and IRON Builds Up Weight in 3 Weeks—or pay nothing

"I am a school instructor and from my study I was convinced that IRONIZED YEAST was exactly what I needed to put me in shape. At the start I weighed 152 lbs., which is below my normal weight. DODGING GLOOM WITH DODGE

FAIR MOTORISTS GREET NEW CAR

Wide open spaces and motor cars are the hobbies of Miss Eleanor Klinkner and Miss Viola Bauldauff, two of Pittsburgh's fairest motorists. They were among the first to greet the new Dodge Senior Six on its arrival here and are shown above in Highland Park with the Sport Sedan of the new line, which has been placed on display by Frank D. Saupp, Inc., distributor.

WOMAN DRIVER IN SIX-DAY RUN

Just to prove the female motor car operator is the equal of the male automobile driver, Telle Glyndon is driving across the country in a Chevrolet sedan on a schedule that calls for her arrival in San Francisco Friday, six days after her departure from Atlantic City.

Miss Glyndon, who is making the trip for the thrill of cross-country driving, is carrying a letter from the Mayor of Atlantic City to the Mayor of San Francisco. She plans to travel an average of 500 miles a day. Two companions are accompanying her on the trip.

The first stop made by Miss Glyndon was in this city Sunday morning. On her arrival here she was greeted by B. F. Stout of the B. F. Stout Company, Chevrolet dealers, Baum boulevard, whose service department checked the oil, grease and tires of the car and replenished the gasoline supply. Miss Glyndon reported the performance of her car as fine and stated she expected to carry out her schedule with ease.

AUTO PRODUCTION IN CANADA DOUBLED

July production of automobiles in Canada, as reported to the Department of Commerce by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, Washington, was as follows: Passenger cars, 20,122; trucks, 5,104, as compared with production in June of 25,341 passenger cars and 3,058 trucks, and production in July, 1927, of 8,719 passenger cars and 2,268 trucks.

RIDING EASE AND STYLE STRESSED

Pittsburgh, the city selected by many automobile manufacturers for the premier showing of their latest products, today receives two more new cars. They are the Dodge Senior Six, in six body types, and the Packard Standard Eight, in 10 different models. All these cars embody the latest improvements created by the engineering departments and the new ideas in color and comfort.

NEW SENIOR SIXES

Style in motor car design that reflects tomorrow's fashion is represented in the New Senior Six models of the Dodge line of cars being displayed by Frank D. Saupp, Inc., and associated dealers. Body lines and interior appointments have been harmonized in a new style creation in which engineers directed all effort to find the best in appearance and performance that could be built into a motor car.

Exceptional riding comfort made possible by the fact that springs extend almost 80 per cent of the car's wheel base, longer and roomier bodies, together with ruggedness and dependability which have gained Dodge Brothers' products a world-wide reputation, are featured in the car. Its smart style, emphasized by every curve of headlamps, radiator, sun visor and fenders, makes it a car of distinctive personality, offered after months of refining a proven design.

Driven by a powerful six-cylinder "L" head motor, exhaustive tests have proven the New Senior a car with lightning acceleration to high speeds, and capable of economically sustaining these speeds for hours with the minimum of vibration and driving effort. New standards of performance are claimed in its operation. Controlling this speed and power are Lockheed hydraulic internal expanding four-wheel brakes, operated by the slightest touch of the foot pedal. The hand brake operates on the propeller shaft, and the lever is located at the left of the driver. Braking facilities give the driver a constant feeling of absolute control, regardless of speed or road conditions. Brakes are completely enclosed and protected from dirt and dust.

Exterior hardware of the New Senior, including radiator shell, headlamps, bumpers, hub caps, door handles, cowl lamps and molding and spare tire brackets are chrome plated, attractively setting off the body lacquers and color combinations.

NEW PACKARD MODEL

The Packard Motor Car Company, through the Packard Motor Car Company of Pittsburgh and its associated dealers, today answered the many queries received since a prior announcement that a new model would be introduced in the late summer. The answer appeared as an entirely new car with a powerful eight-in-line motor and with 10 new body models. It is found to have many new features adding to comfort, safety, performance and appearance.

Probably the most important feature of the latest Packard, from the standpoint of the car owner, is a co-ordinated series of improvements for absorbing all road shocks. Packard calls it the "Packard Shock Absorber System." The company makes the unqualified statement that it has stopped wheel "shimmy", wheel "tramp" and steering wheel "whip" with a new discovery which is an important element in the shock-absorber system. Like all the other features of the system it is a built-in part of the car.

The new car is called the Packard Standard Eight. It is built in two wheel bases, 126 and 133 inches. The motor has been made slightly shorter than the former Packard Eight engine. The new motor, with a bore of 3 3-16 inches and a stroke of five inches, has great power. Packard's policy against depreciating cars in the hands of owners by radical changes in appearance has been maintained rigidly. The car has all the exclusiveness of appearance for which Packard cars have been noted in the past.

PLAN STANTON HEIGHTS COMMUNITY DISCUSSION

The members of the Stanton Heights Community Association will meet to discuss community benefits in that district of the Tenth Ward on Friday night in the Sunnyside Public School. President George Burgwin will preside.

SPARK PLUGS TAILOR-MADE FOR FIT

Most motorists think that a spark plug is just some kind of an igniter which is screwed in the engine to fire the mixture; that the same type of plugs will work all right in all kinds of engines and under all conditions.

This is far from the truth. Spark plugs nowadays are "tailor-made" to fit each engine. A plug has a limited range of temperature and within this range will perform without trouble. Any temperature above or below that range will cause either pre-ignition or fouling trouble.

How To Be Beautiful by Maria Jeritza

SUMMER is waning and the Vacation Girl is home again with an accumulation of energy, health, jolly memories and freckles and tan, which will stay with her many a day.

MARIA JERITZA

Let us hope her only causes for regret at summer's close are a slightly weather-beaten complexion, hair dried by the sun and coarsened by salt water and the aforesaid freckles and tan. After all, these insignificant defects of beauty are a small price to pay for a glorious vacation.

Take freckles, for instance! If you are old-fashioned, you doubtless consider them ugly and suffer agonies of embarrassment when polka dots appear on your nose. But if you are wise and ultra-modern you accept freckles philosophically, just as you do tan, as proof of your outdoor summer.

Perhaps it is going too far to offer a prize to the most freckled girl as some communities are doing nowadays, but the fact remains that freckles are not in high disfavor, as they used to be.

If you took reasonable precautions "before and after exposure," last summer, the chances are your freckles are very pale and will soon disappear. You can encourage this disappearing process by sponging them from time to time during the day with peroxide and rose water mixed together in equal parts. There are effectual freckle bleaches on the market, but these should be used with caution, strictly according to directions, as they are very powerful.

Tan is so ornamental that I am in favor of letting it fade as slowly as possible. If you are tanned, be sure to choose powder that matches the tan. Sunburn, on the contrary, should be avoided, because it is painful and also injurious to the skin. Use of fresh lemon juice and glycerine, mixed together in equal parts, should induce any remnant of summer sunburn to do a disappearing act.

Mild sunshine is good for the scalp and hair, but fiercely-hot sunshine will dry and fade your tresses. Salt water makes them course and dull. The best plan on returning from a sojourn at the seaside is to look up your favorite beauty shop and indulge in five or six treatments for your scalp and hair, to put them once more in tip-top condition. Systematic, expert hair-brushing and scalp-massage, together with oil shampoos, should counteract any damage due to summertime neglect.

In autumn, a beautiful woman should be at her loveliest, because for months she has breathed fresh air and in general lived a more normal life physically than during the shut-in months of winter. Keep you beauty at its highest peak until your next vacation by continuing the hikes, riding and general outdoor activity that make you vitally lovely.

Going to Theater in Europe You Must Buy Your Program And Tip Everybody in Sight

By GEORGE SEIBEL.

THE European audience, how it is trained and how it regards the stage, is a revelation to most Americans. There are other aspects of theatergoing that strike the foreign visitor as even more queer. For instance, you have to buy your program everywhere. Sometimes it's worth the money—at the Paris Opera it is a miniature magazine, with fine portraits of actors and singers. Sometimes it is a mere handbill, but it serves to extract another coin from the spectator.

A coin collector is called a numismatist. Well, nearly all the numismatists of Europe lie in wait at the theaters. You're not allowed to take your hat to your seat—that means a tip. In the French theaters an affable dame conducts you to "a very good seat"—that means another tip. In the foyer, between the acts, you may sip wine and puff a cigaret if you are artistic; you may consume sausage and drain a stein if you are bourgeois—but be sure to have your pockets lined with small change—for the numismatists.

There are exceptions, of course. In the little Hessian university town of Giessen, made famous by the chemist, Liebig, the beautiful theater, owned by the city, has no attendant at the Garderobe. There is a numbered hook for every seat. You hang your superfluous garments upon the hook that has your seat number. And when you leave, after the last act, your hat and coat are still there. The people of Giessen are so honest that even umbrellas are said to be safe.

Besides the other peculiarities of etiquette and ethics, there is the general obligation to wear evening dress in the lower strata of the theater, which are the higher strata in price. But why buy a ticket that imposes on you a "costume de rigueur," when you can get good seats for a maravedi and wear what you please? I heard "Louise" very well sung at the Paris Opera Comique for the vast expenditure of 40 American cents. I heard "Coq d'Or" and "La Peri" at the Grand Opera for the extravagant sum of 60 American cents. Once at the Comedie Francaise I had to pay 75 cents, but that was on a Sunday evening, when everybody goes to theater.

And in Frankfurt I heard "The Flying Dutchman" for one mark, less than 24 cents. But I had to climb so high that I came within three seconds of missing the overture. The man 10 steps behind me did miss it; the door was shut in his face. Served the fellow right! Anyone so irreverent and impious as to come late on a Wagner night ought to be kept in the outer darkness where there is howling and gnashing of teeth.

So if you go to theater abroad, be punctual—and bring a pocket full of small change.

(The next article in this series will appear Thursday.)

SOME THESPIANS -:- WHO FIGURE IN -:- NEWS OF THE DAY

Harry Langdon has deserted the screen and is appearing in a vaudeville engagement on the West Coast.

Irene Rich is a bootlegger now—that is, in the movies. It all happens in "Ned McCobb's Daughter."

George Arliss, English actor, has signed to do three dialogue films for Warner Brothers.

Patsy Ruth Miller is another movie light to take a "flyer" in vaudeville.

"Applesauce"—says William (Buster) Collier about the report that he will marry Constance Talmadge.

ROMBERG WILL CONDUCT

Sigmund Romberg, composer of the music of "The New Moon," operetta coming to the Alvin next week, will conduct the orchestra at Monday night's performance. The sale of seats for this attraction begins Thursday morning. The usual matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

Both afternoon and evening showings of "Simba," motion picture of wild animal and native life in British East Africa, are given daily in the Nixon, where the picture will be kept for a second week, beginning next Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson spent four years in Africa and traveled 1,000 miles in each direction from their base to obtain these pictures.

Last night was Johnny Moore night in the Pitt, where the final stock attraction of the season is a farce, "Nightie Night." Mabel Kroman night will be observed tonight, these "nights" being arranged as farewells to the more prominent members of the George Sharp Players.

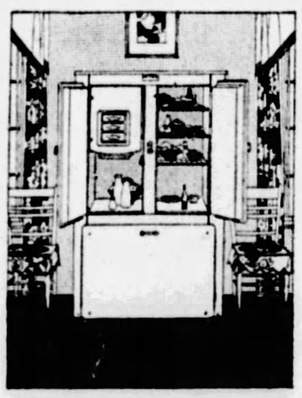
SEE THE NEW FRIGIDAIRE

OPERATION that is practically silent is the newest development in Automatic Electric Refrigeration by Frigidaire.



Stand beside the new Frigidaire while the motor is running and you may detect a scarcely audible purr. Beyond that . . . nothing. Across the room you are unaware of any sound, yet, quiet as it is, the new Frigidaire develops ample refrigeration power. Even the smallest model can freeze as much as 36 full size cubes between meals . . . no matter how hot the weather.

The new Frigidaire comes in beautiful cabinets, designed to harmonize with the modern kitchen . . . finished in white duco or gleaming porcelain enamel, as white and spotless as a china plate . . . and as easy to keep clean.

See for yourself, the new Frigidaire . . . its operation. Examine its many features . . . the seamless porcelain enamel linings . . . the rounded corners easy to keep clean . . . shelves which are removable and at a convenient height . . . and particularly . . . notice its incredibly quiet operation.

You will be convinced that the new Frigidaire is even more beautiful and attractive. They are now on display.

Self-sealing ice trays provide a fresh supply of crystal-like ice cubes for every meal.

The shelves are at a convenient height and are designed for the most compact storage.

MOOSE FAIL TO QUASH CASE

Judge R. M. Gibson of the United States District Court, dismissed a writ of habeas corpus obtained by John Hart and William McBride, officers of Washington Lodge No. 139, Loyal Order of Moose, Washington, Pa., and directed that they be returned to the custody of the United States marshal, pending their trial on a charge of possessing and manufacturing intoxicating liquor.

Prohibition agents raided lodge rooms on August 28, and found 300 gallons of beer. The raid was made by authority of a court order of August 31, 1926, issued in connection with the paroling of other officers of the lodge who had pleaded guilty to violating the prohibition laws.

At the hearing before Judge Gibson, Hart and McBride set forth that they were not the lodge officers who had been paroled, and contended further that the period of probation had expired.

The defendants in the habeas corpus proceedings, Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington, John McNeil, warden of the county jail, and United States Marshal J. C. McGregor, were represented by the United States attorney, who showed that the probation period did not expire until August 31, and that the court order gave the prohibition officers the right to inspect the lodge rooms at any time.

PATRICIA PITT'S COMMENT ON SOCIAL EVENTS

Hunt Club Show to Be Held Sept. 15

DON'T you think that interest in horses and hunting is growing from year to year around Pittsburgh? It seems so to me, at any rate. There is the Allegheny Country Club horse show just three months in the past and now we have the third annual show of the Pittsburgh Hunt Club, an event of keen interest both to those who have their summer estates near the city and the folks who are just getting back from the shore or mountains.

The Hunt Club show is set, you know, for September 15, and will be held at "Ottesaga Farms," the summer home of Herbert G. Lytle in the Fox Chapel district, near Aspinwall. The members have found excellent hunting country in this neighborhood, and to say the least it is rather unusual to discover such a condition within 20 minutes from downtown.

I understand that there are about 50 horses in the club stables, not to mention a large pack of fox hounds. It would be interesting to go out some Wednesday or Saturday afternoon during the months from October to March and watch the riders in their "pink" coats galloping across fields, over fences and through the many woodland trails of the vicinity.

The general committee for the show is headed by George H. Cherrington and he is being assisted by such horse-lovers as Charles L. Flaccus, Jr., Charles F. Colbert, Jr., Howard Heinz, Herbert G. Lytle, George Paull, William G. Costin and Richard King Mellon. There is also an entertainment committee for the affair, and its three members are John Stafford Hunter, Thomas B. Moreland and A. R. Edwards.

A small group of women is arranging the luncheon. The members of this committee are Mrs. Colbert, Jr., Mrs. Lytle, Mrs. Hunter and Mrs. Paull, all, of course, the wives of general and entertainment committeemen.

THE Gaylord Yosts, I hear, are back home at the Ruskin Apartments again after spending two months away from the city. During July they occupied their summer home, "Melody Lodge," at Fayette, O., and for the month of August they were guests of Mrs. Oliver D. Hershman, of Pittsburgh and Los Angeles, at her shore home at Allenhurst, N. J. Mrs. Hershman entertained about 130 guests at her home in honor of Mrs. Yost during her stay.

AN engagement that will interest you is that of Elizabeth Roberts Buchanan and Kenneth Edward Niemann. Elizabeth is a daughter of the Edward Roberts Buchanans, of Denniston avenue, and they have just announced her betrothal to Mr. Niemann, who is a son of the A. Edward Niemanns, of North Negley avenue.

THE marriage of Miss Anna Schaab, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Schaab, of Millvale, and Andrew Donaldson Robb, of Crafton, was solemnized Saturday at 4 o'clock in the First Evangelical Church of Millvale by the Rev. R. T. Marshall. Miss Mary Louise Hoge was maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Zehr and Miss Dorothy Klingensmith. The flower girl was Jean Hyde, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Hyde, of Millvale. John McMichael, son of Mr. and Mrs. S. R. McMichael, of Brownsville, cousin of the bridegroom, was ring bearer. Henry C. Bonner, of Crafton, was best man and the ushers included R. Walker Robb and John McM. Robb, brothers of the bridegroom; Karl A. Schaab, brother of the bride, and Dr. Lawrence R. Eckert. Mr. and Mrs. Robb are motoring through New England for three weeks.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made of the marriage of Miss Margaret Scott Monks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John J. Monks, of Maryland avenue, and Dr. Francis L. Guinan, of Geneva, N. Y., which was solemnized yesterday morning at 9 o'clock in the Sacred Heart Catholic Church by the Rev. William M. Hart, of Rochester, N. Y. Miss Mae Murray, of Buffalo, was maid of honor and James Guinan was his brother's best man. The ushers included Thomas Hayes, of Tonawanda, N. Y., and John Burns, of Buffalo. A breakfast at the Chartiers Heights Country Club followed the ceremony, and later Dr. and Mrs. Guinan left for a motor trip to Canada. After September 17 they will be at home in Geneva.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK A. WIGHTMAN, of North avenue, Blawnox, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Gertrude Wightman, and A. William Benson, of DuBois, which was solemnized yesterday morning by the Rev. Herman Hosack. After an eastern motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Benson will be at home in McKinley avenue, Blawnox.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK J. GREB, of St. Marie street, announce the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Greb, and Fred J. Gutherlein, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Gutherlein, of the East End, which was solemnized yesterday in St. Peter's Lutheran Church by the Rev. John L. Ernst. Miss Florence Gutherlein was maid of honor and Henry C. Greb was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Gutherlein have left for an eastern and southern motor trip and after October 1 will be at home in Paulson avenue.

THE marriage of Miss Mary Isabel Cavanagh, daughter of Mrs. Frank Cavanagh, of West Carson street, and John F. Begly, of Baden, was solemnized Monday morning in St. Francis de Sales Church, West Park, by the Rev. J. P. O'Reilly. The bride wore white georgette and Irish point lace, and her tulle veil was held with a cap of seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried white roses and baby's breath. Miss Ella M. O'Leary, as maid of honor, appeared in yellow satin crepe with picture hat to match, and carried asters and baby's breath. Her niece, Mary Jane Sheehan, was shawl bearer. Jack O'Donnell, of Ambridge, was best man. A breakfast for the families followed the ceremony at the Hotel Schenley. Mr. and Mrs. Begly have left for a lake trip and after September 15 will be at home in West Carson street.

The Prince of Wales — His Story.

Bears Dignity of Position In Manner Termed as Irreproachable

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE:

His Royal Highness, Edward, Prince of Wales, heir to the British throne, was born at White Lodge, Richmond in midsummer of 1894. Guilty of much mischief during his childhood days, he was often punished. When he grew older he was sent to Osborne Naval College and later to Oxford for his university education. During the World War he became a captain in the Army and went to France, but was not permitted to get into the actual fighting. After the war he made his first tour of Canada and then paid a visit to the United States.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

"Edward P."

By WALTER AND LEONARD TOWNSEND

CHAPTER XIV.

IT HAS always been a source of surprise that the Prince does not suffer physically by his strenuous life. It would be untrue to say that the Prince is possessed of such abounding vitality that he never feels the strain which is imposed upon him. There are times, of course, when he is as sick and tired as anyone else, and has to allow his doctors to take him over; but the fact is the Prince does possess one of the strongest of constitutions.

PRINCE OF WALES

It has often been suggested that the Prince is not enthusiastically keen to ascend the throne of England. The Prince has his own idea upon the position of modern royalty, and the way they should conduct themselves both individually and as far as the state is concerned. The Prince of Wales has probably spent more time and thought upon the science of royalty than any other living person.

Few know the Prince's problems on the subject of royalty. He is faced on the one hand with medieval tradition and beliefs of a large mass of people with a pleasant fund of historical lore, and on the other with the reactionary thousands who are not at all sure whether they believe royalty is necessary today or not. The Prince has enough sympathy and economic and historical education to realize that both parties have good points in their favor and that each have a right to be satisfied either one way or the other of royalty itself.

The Prince of Wales, as the heir apparent to the throne, has decided ideas upon the future positions royalty will hold. Many of the one-time strong European crowns have tottered, yet the House of Windsor has never been firmer established in the annals of the British Empire than it is today. Prince Edward is a king of the future. The strenuous training he is receiving today is fitting him especially as no other training could do, for the future position of King of England.

Governs Own Activities

He is the one leader who can be relied upon to temper his reactionary outlook with rare common-sense and discriminating ideals. You will look long and in vain for any unsound statements in the Prince's speeches despite the fact that they are often strongly charged with modern sentiments.

Those who have some misgivings as to the kind of king he will make, fall into a common error of supposing that the Prince would conduct himself the same as he does today when later sitting upon the throne. As the Prince of Wales he does not hold such a dignified position as the King. He can enjoy a comparative freedom in his present role which will be immediately debarred him when he relinquishes his present title for that of king.

One day, after having ridden in a steeplechase, the Prince returned to a nearby farm where, quite unrecognized, he had garaged his car. The farmer, handing over the motor, remarked: "Prince o' Wales ridin' they tell me. Did he win?"

"No!" replied the Prince, "he had a fall!"

"Ah!" came the farmer's grim reply, "he'll break his neck one of these days, mark my words."

"Well,"—the Prince smiled—"it's his own neck, so it doesn't matter, does it?"

This story is typical of the Prince of Wales' attitude towards his own personal safety. He is most obstinately determined to maintain the right to govern his own activities during his leisure hours, and is quite prepared to take any risks that may accrue from them. The Prince does not hold life cheaply by any means however.

Keeps Up Dignity

When the crowds thronged round his car on one occasion during his Australian tour, the Prince was most anxious and concerned lest any one of them be injured in their excitement to greet him. When, therefore, he saw a woman being sadly crushed in the crowd he turned to one of the escorting mounted police and asked that a way should be made for her to the car. When she reached this position he shook her warmly by the hand.

With himself, however, the Prince has a different idea. He realizes that, being unmarried as yet, the only ties that bind him to take precautionary measures against the chance of accident to himself are those of state. Willing enough to meet the state's demands half way, the Prince contends that any of his brothers could take his place, should the need arise, and fill it with the utmost satisfaction and efficiency.

As the King of England, however, the Prince of Wales could of necessity take a different viewpoint. His life would be of the utmost importance to the nation and—if he were married—to his family.

As it is, the Prince is by no means unaware that his rank is an important one, and if not for his own sake, at least for his country's, he keeps up the dignity of his position in a way which can only be described as irreproachable. If you see the Prince of Wales at some big banquet, you will be impressed by the dignity he is able to confer upon the whole ceremony merely by his quiet manners and unostentatious bearing. When abroad, visiting other European royal families, the Prince is quite at ease and always in demand both for his sporting proclivities and his personal charm. He is the most metful member of the younger royalty in Europe. This is in no little way due to his reserve, which still lingers over his temperament despite a thousand and one adventures and experiences in all countries and his marvelously wide circle of acquaintances in every sphere of life.

In his speech the Prince shows a ready wit as well as a masterly command of modern phraseology.

MERRILY THEY SPLASHED!

"BATTLE"

Dormont and East Carnegie firemen staged a "pitched battle" in Dormont. It was a most unusual fight—nobody won. This photograph shows the East Carnegie boys, armed to the teeth, as the battle opened.

ALL WET

The water battle was part of a celebration held by Dormont firemen to raise funds. The firemen are shown above "going at it" hose and nozzle, so to speak. Some of the spectators got as much out of the battle as the participants.

A Mystery; Name Him!

RECOGNIZE HIM?

Honestly, now, if you were asked, could you tell the name of the traffic patrolman on your corner, the one who speaks to you when you pass by? The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, if you can't, will help you a bit. Each day there is published the photograph of one of the city's traffic officers. Here is one for today. His name tomorrow!

YESTERDAY'S "TRAFFIC COP" WAS JOHN GANNON, MARRIED, FIFTH AVENUE, WHO IS THE MAINSPRING AT FIFTH AVENUE AND SMITHFIELD STREET. HE IS A THREE-YEAR TRAFFIC VETERAN.

Gets 60 Days For Pre-Dry "Slicking"

Two months before prohibition went into effect, in 1919, a sad figure approached Tom Mullen, 65, of 1418 Pitcairn street, in a downtown saloon. He asked Tom to solve a sudden attack of cramps by buying a drink.

Tom, sympathetic, produced a $50 bill. The stranger grabbed it and fled. Tom has been looking for him ever since. He saw him—or thought he did—yesterday at Cherry way and Third avenue. He called a policeman.

In Central Police Court today the prisoner denied the 9-year-old theft, but Magistrate John J. Orie believed Tom. He sentenced the defendant, who said he was Harry Heater, 40, of 2909 California avenue, to 60 days.

HELD AS PAIR WHO STOLE DRIVERS' CAR AND CLOTHES

Accused of robbing William Harper, of Wireton, of his automobile and his clothing, leaving him bound and gagged along the Stoops Ferry road Sunday night, John Paranski, 21, of 604 General Robinson street, and Frank Slago, 18, of McKees Rocks, were held for court without bail last night by Justice of the Peace E. W. Dickson, of Coraopolis.

The young men are said to have admitted staging the robbery after obtaining a "lift."

Harper told police that the men boarded his car near the Sewickley Bridge and a short time later forced him to accompany them into a small wooded spot along the road. They took his clothes, he said, gagged him with leaves and then tied him. A few minutes later he freed himself. Running to the road, he hailed a motorist, and the young men were overtaken in McKees Rocks.

Green Is Winner In Mich.

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Gov. Fred W. Green, Republican, was renominated at yesterday's state-wide primary by a majority that this morning reached more than 157,000 and promised to run colse to 200,000 when the complete vote has ben tabulated.

In returns from 1,927 out of the state's 3,184 precincts the governor had 260,532 against 102,902 for George W. Welsh, former lieutenant governor.

For lieutenant governor, on the Republican ticket, Luren D. Dickinson, incumbent, led on returns from 1,842 precincts. The figures were: Dickinson, 133,436; Fred L. Woodworth, Detroit, 83,494; G. Elmer McArthur, Eaton Rapids, 52,278.

In the Democratic contest Frank J. Sawyer, of Grand Blanc, led Theodore Elferdink, of Grand Rapids, 5,652 to 3,395 in 1,842 precincts.

FORMER LABOR LEADER DIES

Hugh F. Dempsey, 73, who sprang into prominence as a labor leader during the Homestead strike, almost 40 years ago, died last night in West Penn Hospital. During the strike he was active in the ranks of the Knights of Labor.

Later he became a deputy coroner and served 20 years, retiring six years ago. For many years he resided on the South Side and recently moved to 778 Greenfield avenue. He leaves one son.

Still Fills Woman's Home

Two small rooms at 39 Bustrick way constitute the home of Mrs. Rose Hardy, 42, and her six children, and most of the space is occupied by the paraphernalia of a distillery, Police Lieut. Thomas Gross told Magistrate A. D. Brandon in Morals Court today.

Mrs. Hardy was fined $100 for violating the liquor law and the Children's Service Bureau was requested to advise Brandon if the children should be taken away from her.

Gross raided the Hardy home and found 10 gallons of moonshine, four barrels of mash and a 50-gallon still, he testified.

Mrs. Hardy's defense was that she was making whisky for a banquet to celebrate the return from the hospital of one of her children, who recently underwent an operation.

AUGUST DAUB

August Daub, 69, director of the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, Pa., is dead today in his home, 245 Steuben street, Crafton. He was one of the most prominent Masons in this district. He was a member of many Masonic societies, including Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S., of which he was a past potentate.

AUGUST DAUB, LEADER IN MASONIC CIRCLES, DIES

August Daub, 69, one of the most prominent Masons in Western Pennsylvania and a director of the Masonic Home at Elizabethtown, Pa., died last night at his home, 245 Steuben street, Crafton.

For 50 years he had been engaged in the wholesale cheese business here as a member of the firm of Daub Brothers. He also was a director of the Globe Insurance Company.

Born in Obergleen, Germany, Mr. Daub came to this country with his parents when a child. He was past master of Guyasuta Lodge No. 513, F. & A. M.; Mt. Moriah Council No. 2, R. S. & M. M.; past high priest of Zerubbabel Royal Arch Chapter No. 162; past eminent commander, Pittsburgh Commandery No. 1, Knights Templar; past thrice potent master, Gourgas Lodge of Perfection, and past potentate of Syria Temple, A. A. O. N. M. S.

He leaves his sister, Mrs. Elizabeth Stein, with whom he made his home.

RUM PROBE BARES POLICE RICHES

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 5.—A high police official stood revealed today as possessor of accounts in half a dozen banks and a safety deposit box filled with cash and securities, as a result of District Attorney John Monaghan's grand jury probe of underworld activities in Philadelphia.

Monaghan declined to reveal the name of the police official, but intimated that the funds discovered amounted to thousands of dollars. Unless the sources of this wealth and huge sums owned by several police officials can be explained it will be considered tantamount to prima facie evidence of graft and corruption in office, the district attorney said.

PROSECUTOR SUSPICIOUS

"What business has a police official on the salary he obtains from the city, to have big bank accounts in half a dozen banks and to possess safety boxes filled with securities?" Monaghan asked.

The contents of the safety deposit box, the second seized since the probe began, will be examined today by the grand jury. It is reported the official stored away graft money for use when he quits the force.

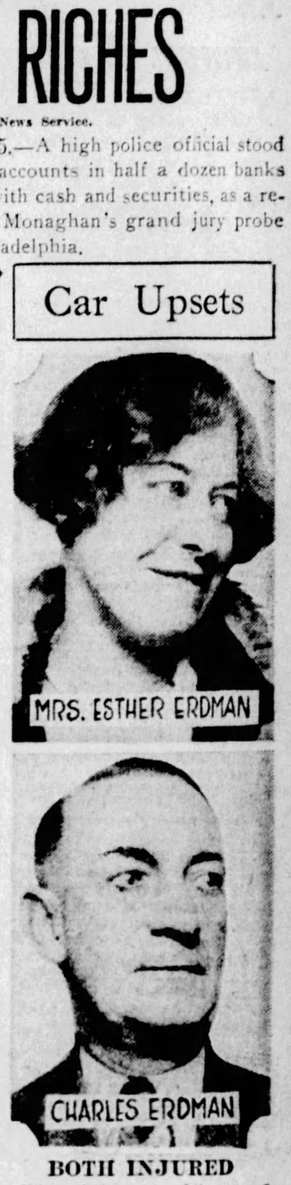
The man is declared to have risen from the ranks. He virtually holds the bootleggers and gunmen at his mercy, it is claimed, and is able to tap their profits at will.

The seizure of the box was followed by a two-hour examination by the grand jury of Captain of Detectives Charles Beckman, his 70-year-old mother, who came to City Hall from a sick bed, and Beckman's brother, Gustave, well-known musician and composer.

Beckman publicly denounced reports that he had inherited $200,000 from an estate in Germany as false.

Max "Boo Boo" Hoff, fight promoter, denounced by Monaghan as the brains behind the bootlegging ring, was quizzed again yesterday by the grand jury and was summoned to appear again today.

Car Upsets



BOTH INJURED

When their automobile turned over on Center road, near Alcoma Country Club, Charles Erdman, 46, 1408 Beaver avenue, and his wife, Mrs. Esther Erdman, were injured. At Columbia Hospital, 14 stitches were put in Erdman's arm. Mrs. Erdman suffered cuts on the head and face.

ARREST BOY, 16, IN BEER CAR

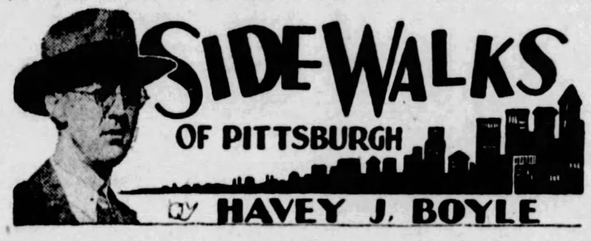
A 16-year-old boy and a man were arrested by prohibition agents yesterday in an automobile which, the officers said, contained 724 pints of beer. The boy said he was Albert Smith, of 330 Ophelia street. With the man, Thomas Allen, 28, of Carey way, he was lodged in Central Police Station. The bottles, packed in 30 cartons, were in the rear of the car which was seized at Beechwood boulevard and Fifth avenue.

A raid on a two-story frame house in the rear of 1128 Laurel street, was reported by the agents. There they said they seized 55 gallons of moonshine, 60 bottles of home brew, a beer "shooter," and seven sacks of whisky barrel chips. No arrests were made.

"MARRIED LOVE" STAYS IN OLYMPIC

Answering questions is a feature of Dr. M. Sayle Taylor's production, "Married Love," now in its third week in the Olympic, with performances for men only this week. During afternoon and evening shows, Dr. Taylor answers from the stage any question on health, marriage, divorce or kindred subjects. This feature is presented in conjunction with the usual program.

SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH



By HAVEY J. BOYLE

AS A veteran father, wishing to improve at this, the time when the children go back to school, we re-read the other evening Mr. Shaw's advice to parents and children in his long preface to his play, "Misalliance." As a childless man, Mr. Shaw, of course, cannot be expected to know all about how to raise children, but there was one part of his sermon we liked particularly. He said obedience and truthfulness always were expected of children. He deemed this fatuous. He said obedience is not always a virtue (we suppose when bad parents tell children to do things they ought not to do) and that truthfulness is something acquired only by the gods.

It was his general argument, if you are still listening, that parents insist on making their children as they (the parents) are—a form of high vanity. He advocates letting the children, within certain limited restrictions, do pretty much as they like. Unfortunately, he does not say what you are to do when children seem to like chocolate candy much better than milk. No one thwacks children anymore—and yet, Mr. Shaw, there's that glassful of milk—untouched. Please wire.

We are tempted at this point to get sentimental about the pitter-patter of the children on their way back to school after their summer vacation, but a too good memory brings back a sharp thrust we received in the general direction of our knickers, when once before we got that way. Let us say, briefly, the children have gone back to school, and let everyone draw on his own sentimentalities, if any.

THERE was a dandy radio program on last night. We don't recall the numbers, but what made the thing great was that no one played or sang "Romona." Either of the major political parties might swing the election with a plank against Romona and those mission bells.

Many towns might copy Meadville's system in handling visiting motorists. Instead of getting a "socking" there because he may have no influence with the powers the visiting motorist gets a "break." Victor Shrub shows us a tag they give you in Meadville when you park in a restricted place. The card tells the visitor that he made an error and asks him to be careful the next time. For the same offense, a resident might have to tell it to the judge because he is supposed to know more about Meadville than an outsider.

OF COURSE, conditions in Pittsburgh are more complex than they are in Meadville, but after the smoke of battle clears away on a hard day Pittsburgh motorists and traffic policemen sign a friendly truce. The armistice always lasts at least until 8 o'clock the next morning. Proof of this sundown amity is shown by the way traffic policemen are always given a lift to near their homes by motorists who go that way.

Bumped into Dan Winters, city councilman, the other day. Mr. Winters has promoted much legislation for the good of the city firemen. While he was never in a position to do much for the volunteer firemen, he always did what he could for their cousins on the city force.

RECENT experiences in a dental chair cause us to question the judgment of Noah in taking two dentists along with all those other things on the ark that day the whole game was nearly called on account of rain.

JOHN COOLIDGE TO WORK FOR FLORENCE'S FATHER

SUPERIOR, Wis., Sept. 5.—John Coolidge may be the son of the President and a college graduate to boot, but when he enters business he's going in on the ground floor and work his way up.

It was learned here today that John is planning to go to work in the electrical appliances manufacturing plant of Gov. Trumbull, of Connecticut. His first job will not be of the white collar variety, it is understood, but one actually in the shops. From there, of course, he is expected to work his way up.

Gov. Trumbull is the father of Florence, that attractive young lady to whom it is rumored, and seemingly reliable so, that John is engaged.

John is arriving in New York today. On September 9 Miss Trumbull arrives from Europe, where it is whispered she has been selecting a trousseau, and John undoubtedly will remain in New York to meet her. From there, the couple probably will go to Hartford, Conn., and to the Trumbull camp in Maine before John buckles down to his first job.

Will Rogers Says

SANTA MONICA, Cal., Sept. 5.

I have been libelled by my friend Brisbane in his editorial. He says that at one time I was a Sunday school teacher. Now he is wrong. I went but I didn't teach. I didn't even take up the collection. Some banker always did that.

On account of me being a candidate, he is trying to drag me into all this religious controversy.

You see, if he can prove that I was connected with a Sunday school it will lose me the Catholic and Jewish votes.

If he can prove that it was a Methodist Sunday school, it will lose me the Baptists.

All religions in this campaign seem such handicaps that I think it's better to claim you are an Atheist.

Yours, WILL.

Consternation Caused When Little Timmy Is Taken Down With Pneumonia

"YOU talked to my wife? That's what you did? What did you say to her? Answer now!"

"Why—why, you let me go! She knew all about us, I tell you! Let me go, I say!"

He dropped her arms, glaring. "She knew I'd taken you out once or twice!"

"It wasn't once or twice," she wailed. "It was all the time! And you said—you said—oh, I thought you liked me! I thought you wanted me—" Tears. Moans. Hysteria.

He turned away, sick with disgust. "Hell's bells! No brain—Lord, what a fool I've been! Better go home," he growled. "You've done enough for one day."

"You're blaming me," she sobbed. "You're blaming me!" The age-old plaint of the woman.

He grabbed his hat, dashed out without glancing back—dashed around to his wife's office. Her desk was closed; she had gone.

He flung himself out of the building; broke the traffic laws getting uptown. Ione was not there. Klarschen put his dinner on the tray; he ignored it. Moving here and there, muttering under his breath. "Fool—oh, damnable—"

He went into the bedroom, picked up the things on the dresser—Ione's brushes, her powder box—put them down again; wandered to her desk, leafed the Wish Book. It fell open to the last page, there was a sketch of himself, a fair likeness in crayon.

Beneath it a question mark.

He stared—closed the book slowly. Then he went down to the street and got into the car intending to drive for a couple of hours till Ione came home.

She came, as a matter of fact, shortly afterward and found the janitor's wife watching. Her father had been telephoning all evening, the woman said. The little nephew was ill and they wished her to come home. She waited only long enough to hurry upstairs and leave a note for Alan. Then she ran all the way to the nearest taxi stand.

Timmy had pneumonia.

The last of the long line of nursemaids had allowed him to go splashing through puddles on a raw spring day when he already had a cold. By evening he was tossing in fever.

Now the living room was stripped of furnishings.

A cot in the center of the floor—small figure lying there, every breath a struggle.

Jenepher sat like a statue, white-lipped, dazed.

Ione brought her hot milk and begged her to rest; she tried achingly to comfort her sister.

"Io—why, I wanted everything for him! That's why I was doing it—all for him—"

Jenepher would say only this in a dull, unbelieving way; she refused both food and sleep.

And Tim sat in the kitchen with his face in his hands. Always like that; shoulders hunched, face in his hands.

Tom came for Ione on the third day and made her go for a tramp in the hills. "You're not to be making yourself sick, lass, in that place of sorrow. Ah, the little fellow! When he gets well—" He repeated this for the comfort it gave, "When he gets well he'll come home to Janey and me. We've been too long patient with the way of his mother."

"You think she'll be willing to give him up, then?"

"She's given up all else. Her home is but a house and her husband a weary, disillusioned man."

"But I'm sure Tim loves her. Oh, in spite of everything."

"Well, now, a man's affection, dear—there's a strange thing. It's like a lamp that must be tended. It was the wise virgins kept their lamps trimmed and ready with oil; you mind the bridegroom denied the others.

"Timothy is a good lad and strong in loyalty. But I doubt if Jenepher came back to him in the old manner would his love be the fine thing it was."

Ione had this to muse upon, the symbol of the trimmed lamp, when she thought about Alan in the times she had for thinking.

Marie telephoned and asked her to come for dinner. Timmy's illness was not yet approaching the crisis and while she hated to leave Jenepher there was nothing she could do.

So Ione went to the bungalow on Highmount road and was admitted by a maid in a smart uniform.

"Seems to me we're pretty swanky," she told the Elliotts, laughing at the picture of placid domesticity they made.

Pal was sitting on the floor playing with his small-red-haired daughter; Marie, grown staid and rather matronly, bore small resemblance to the pert kid Ione had known.

"Only wait till you hear!" she cried, beaming at her husband. And they told their story together, each trying to give the other all the credit for the good fortune that had come to them.

They grew so argumentative in a happy, adoring way, that Ione finally begged them to leave the mutual admiration party for another time and tell her what had happened.

It went back to the story of a Sunday when Marie had entertained Pal's chief in the law office and his family, making ready for them at short notice and so delighting them with her friendly, unaffected kindness that a close friendship had sprung up.

Because of this Pal had been given some important commissions and had so distinguished himself that now he was taken into a junior partnership. The Elliotts were on their way to success.

"I'm so glad, Marie, dear! So the law you were going to fulfill did take care of you! You paid for the house first thing?"

"Yes, the house is paid for. But—well, it's small and—" She glanced toward her husband; he got up and went out, grinning.

"Darling lamb! You see, Io, we're hoping for a little son before a great while. Oh, sometimes I think I don't deserve so much happiness!

"Anyway, we've bought another house; the big one across the street where there'll be more room for babies. We'll go on welcoming them . . . And Pal insisists on keeping a maid."

Ione said something about a tended lamp which her friend didn't understand. Marie looked beautiful to her suddenly, luminous with happiness. The happiest face that ever she had seen excepting possibly, Janey's. . . .

"And Io, love, do you remember how we used to talk against a woman settling down to housework? Getting stodgy? I often think of it; I've told Pal and we've laughed about it many times.

"As if a woman couldn't have the grandest career in the world just being a wife and mother! It goes far beyond the four walls of her home, too. Why, Pal insists I'm the one who brought him his chance. A great thing to hear your husband say that, I tell you!"

"Oh, Marie—" Ione's voice caught; her eyes brimmed.

CHAPTER XL

ON a day that was a topaz bell pressing down softly upon a smiling world the doctor came, stood a great while by the little, wasted fellow on the cot, said ominously, "We'll know tonight."

Ione went back to Jenepher, stark, disheveled figure watching beside her son. "Jen darling—"

"Don't, Io. I can't stand it. If we could go back! You think I've been hard. I scolded once because his face was dirty. My little boy—oh, my God! Ambitious—but I wanted things for him. A better start than any of us had. I wanted to climb up.

"If you gain the whole world—Tom said that? Yes. Lose your own soul—oh, if he—if he doesn't get well that will happen to me. No use living if he doesn't get well—"

"Now, Jen, that isn't brave. That won't help him. Why, he needs your courage! You think he can't feel it, his bright little spirit? Do that for him, dear."

"Whatever happens I'm all through. I'll write them a letter and say I'm not coming back. See if I can pick up the dropped threads. Make something of Tim's life and mine. A woman trying to cheat destiny—no, you can't do it. Go on a bit and then destiny overtakes you and you see how useless are your little human plans."

"Indeed it's the better way, Jen dearest. You know now." Ione said it with eyes brimming, a light breaking in her heart.

The long day went on slowly, so very slowly. Toward evening the doctor returned and sat down beside the cot. A stillness crept upon the house; there was only the nurse's starchy rustle and her low reply to his orders.

Hour after hour of that, waiting in the silence, time standing still. Ione heard the village clocks strike midnight and Janey brought in coffee. It choked her; she put it aside, watching the doctor who had his stethoscope against the baby's chest.

The doctor raised up abruptly and ran a handkerchief over his face. Ione caught the nurse by the sleeve. "It isn't—oh—not—"

"He's rallying. All right for now. Later he may sink again."

But there was no change. And in the morning the blue look had gone out of the small face and the little hands, though quite lifeless, no longer burned.

When Jenepher awakened in the afternoon they told her Timmy would live.

"But he'll be delicate," the nurse said. "Take him years to work out of this. He was in bad shape, undernourished. He'll need every care."

"Oh, he'll have that! Indeed he'll have everything!"

Tom said, solemnly, "We'll be taking the ladeen home after a bit for Janey to nurse, Jenepher. You'll not oppose us in this. His grandmother has a way with little ones."

"You think it best, father? Well—"

But of course he didn't yet know that Jenepher was giving up her work, Ione thought. That would please old angel Tom; it would make him wish to leave the boy with his mother.

She wrote to Benz explaining everything. It now was the middle of the week and she wished to remain in Lyall till the following Monday. After the strain she needed rest, she said.

But what she really wanted was time to think. Her life must be settled before she went back to the city. She would have to make the decision now upon which would rest all her years.

She went about this bravely and honestly, taking plenty of time. Tramping the hills, walking through the woods lot, she did her thinking. Once she went down to the old Van Wyck house, still unoccupied and rather melancholy in the bright May morning.

The agent, Mr. Peterson, was clearing weeds from the yard. "And have you made up your mind yet, Miss Ione?" he called to her.

"I don't know—"

"Tell you what; you might have it for less than five hundred down, I shouldn't wonder. Two or three hundred, say, and as much again in six months with the rest all easy. I'd be glad to get it off my hands what with more work than I can do now.

"You think it over, Miss Ione. See what your pa says. There's a good head at judging a place."

She promised to let him know. Promised with no great hope, and went on down the road without looking back. It was like letting go a dream of great sweetness after a long struggle against having to live up to the rules—she'd let me be happy if she could—"

Her face softened with tenderness, and with an impulsive gesture she opened the hand in which she had clutched the miniature case, opened it and pressed a kiss upon the exquisite presentment of the beautiful and famous queen of Transvania. Then she thrust it toward me.

"Isn't she marvelous, my beautiful maman?" she demanded.

"Indeed she is," I returned, trying to make my voice sound sincere, but my heart was hot against the woman who could so sacrifice her child, no matter how hidebound the traditions which surrounded her.

"But she's like iron when she makes up her mind to any course," the daughter of the resolute queen went on, "so I knew that my trip to America would be my last glimpse of freedom, thht going back to Transvania afterward would be the same thing as going to prison for life, and—quite suddenly—I made up my mind that I never would go back to Transvania.

"Of course, that was much easier to say, and to dream about than to accomplish. In all your country, I knew but two people, Henry and Anna Schmidt, whom you know as my uncle and aunt, Henry and Anna Lincoln. Anna had been my nurse until I grew too old for such service and Henry was a steward on one of the estates. Both are devoted to me, and both were nearly as heart-broken as I when Henry's brother, who earlier had emigrated to America and prospered, was found dead and Henry, his sole heir, had to come over and live upon his property. I knew that they would help me in anything I wished to do, and would keep any secret of mine as safe as the grave, if I could only get to them. I was sure that only I, of our family, knew their address, for my mother did not like either of them particularly, and had not kept track of them.

"The next question was that of money, for I knew I should need a great deal of it. I had some of my own in a bank which I drew out the last day before we left the country, and I managed to bring all my personal jewels with me. But it was not enough, and I was overjoyed when the chance offered itself to do a favor—deliver a message over here for some one who was willing to pay what was a fortune to me for the favor. But—it's like the Old Man of the Sea around my neck, that favor. However, that's nothing to bother you with now."

Secretly I disagreed with her. I was very sure that it was the crux of her story, and that if I were to aid her in the danger which so palpably threatened her, it was most necessary that I hear more of this mysterious person who was willing to "pay a fortune" for the delivery of a message.

Differing Wishes -:- -:- By Fanny Darrell

INNOCENCE and Sophistication! Starry-eyed Youth, lovely in her innocence, with the scent of Heaven still lingering around her, adoringly gazes on Sophistication and wishes, oh, so much, that when she grows up she'll be just like the Beautiful Lady with her jewels and gorgeous gown and mysterious perfume.

And Sophistication gazes wistfully at Innocence and wishes the years would roll back and she might again be as Youth, who's envying and adoring her.

But that's the way of Life! When we're young we're wishing the years would hurry that we can enjoy all we read about and get fleeting glimpses of. And when we've attained the goal we've sought, we'd give our souls to return again to the peace and security of Youth.

Differing wishes! Ah, yes! One wishing with all her heart for the Love of which she's heard so much; the other, disillusioned and stripped of every Ideal, regretting the passing years. So pray for TRUE Love—unselfish, trusting Love that will last forever.

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By ADELE GARRISON

The Princess Tried to Lose Herself in America

THE voice of the Princess Olina of Transvania, vibrant with repugnant scorn of the royal suitor her parents had forced upon her, trailed away into silence—a silence I did not dare break for fear of snapping the continuity of the absorbing story she was telling me.

It was a journey into a world entirely foreign to my own humdrum existence upon which she was "personally conducting" me, and I fairly held my breath in the pause which followed her description of the ill-favored and middle-aged King of Trees to whom her parents had betrothed her.

"Then," she resumed, with a brightening of her tone, "when I could see no way out but killing myself, my father and mother—wishing, I fancy, to give me a last good time before tying me up to an old man, said that I might make the trip too. Poor mother; she can't help being a queen and

by HELEN ROWLAND

WE MODERN WOMEN

THE rise of the average American family: Three generations from shirt-sleeves to pajama-parties, and from bare feet to bare legs.

There is always a woman in the crowd who boasts that she never patronizes a beauty parlor. Oh, well, there are cars that have never been polished and houses that have not had a new coat of paint in years!

* * *

A woman used to go into a convent, or a decline, when a lover disappointed or a husband deserted; now, she goes in for politics, a new club, a new cult or a tea-room.

HELEN ROWLAND

A wife is not actually "seasoned" until she can spend a whole afternoon thrilling to the love-making of an exotic movie hero, and then go home and forget him while she cheerfully gets dinner for a tired, perspiring everyday man in rumpled tweeds with a wilted collar.

It takes one woman 20 years to "mold" her son according to her ideals—and another woman 20 years to RE-mold him into something human.

* * *

Now and then, you meet a girl who looks her best in a bathing suit; but the only time when a man looks his best in a bathing suit is after he gets under the water.

Love making, like cooking, is a joy or a bore, according to whether you regard it as an art, a science, a pastime, or just plain everyday routine.

Lots of women are splendid citizens and red hot little politicians—until it comes to going out in the rain to register.

There MAY be men who can bear great pain as stoically as a woman; but where will you find one who can bear a thousand little discomforts with the same set smile?

At last the lowly liver has been raised from a "complaint" to a "cure!"

HOW TO KEEP WELL

by Royal S. Copeland M.D.
U.S. Senator from New York

Guard Your Eyes; Infection Is Easy

YESTERDAY I stood in a subway junction waiting for a train. A pretty young girl sat on a nearby bench. She was doing something that may ruin her looks and impair her health. Her busy fingers were rubbing her face and eyes, pinching the skin, pulling her lips and nose, fussing continually.

DR. COPELAND

My attention was held by her actions. She happened to get on the same train I took and sat opposite me in the car. Her activity did not cease. What she was doing reminded me of the movements of a professional giving a face massage.

You must not put your soiled hands on your face. It is all too easy to convey the germs of disease in this way. The germs of influenza and other diseases of the breathing apparatus, as well as various skin diseases, may be picked up by the hands.

Kind nature made the skin of the hands, particularly of the palm and finger tips, very thick, armour-like. You may get germs on those parts without having them break through the covering to cause damage to your health and life. As a matter of fact, you do gather up multitudes of germs and other offensive material. Under the finger nails may be found such agents of disease.

Soap and water, with much scrubbing, will wash away these dangerous substances. That is the way to dispose of them.

I beg of you not to fuss with your eyes, nose and mouth. Harmful agents can enter your body through these organs. They are parts of the anatomy which should be guarded against infection and the entrance of infection.

It is dangerous to squeeze and pick the skin with unclean fingers and finger nails. If you are bound to do these wrongful things, for goodness sake, wash your hands thoroughly before beginning this foolish attack upon your precious skin.

If I had walked up to that thoughtless miss and told her to take her fingers off her face, she would have considered me a madman and perhaps called the police. So, of course, I didn't say a word to her, but I am telling you and the thousands of others who will read this that soiled hands should never, never come into contact with the tissues of the face.

As I have said many times before, I have no particular objection to cosmestics. I do wish, of course, that everybody would lead such manner of life as to make the skin glow with health. Then artificial aids would not be needed.

But if you do use cosmestics, don't sleep with them. Cleanse the skin thoroughly with an abundance of soap and water.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Thursday, September 6

AN eventful day in personal as well as business associations is the forecast made from an interesting congeries of planetary operations. And while there may be strongly opposing and delaying forces to contend with, yet there may be fresh opportunities in new fields. Employment is in jeopardy although the finances are fortified. In heart and home affairs things should be lively and pleasant.

Those whose birthday it is may expect an eventful and enjoyable year notwithstanding some obstacles and delays. There may be new openings, possibly following a change of employment. Personal affairs take a predominant place.

A child born on this day may be endowed with many social and intellectual graces fitting it for popularity and good position in life.

Do modern mothers sell their daughters to wealthy husbands?

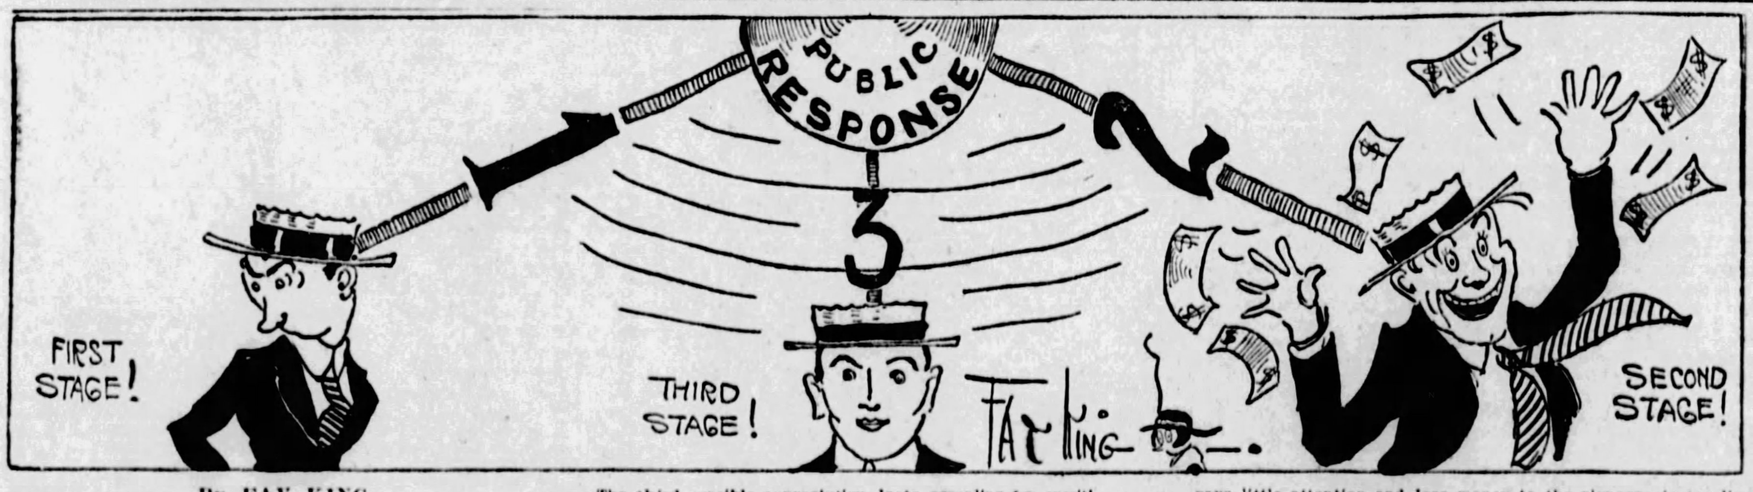
Fay King Tells How the Pendulum of Public Opinion Swings



By FAY KING

THE pendulum of public response swings in three stages! The first, casual attention, merely touches general interest! The second, hysterical enthusiasm, reaches the peak of imagination! The third, sensible appreciation, lasts according to merit!

If the object of public enthusiasm is worth while, it settles for good in the steady third position. If it is a passing fad, it settles here a little while, and then fades out entirely. The public pays little attention and less money to the pioneers in any line! But it pays both in its attention and money entirely too much to those who ride the crest of its exaggerated public enthusiasm! Pugilism and the movies are now swinging into third!

ADULTS' TIME TO HELP FUND FOR BABIES

Something has been said before of the cessation of active interest in The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Milk and Ice Fund once the boys and girls have again entered school. Something has also been said about the shifting of responsibility for the fund to the shoulders older than those of school children. Today there is not a single contribution to the fund.

Where are those men and women whose interest in humanity is broad enough to give thought (plus a contribution) to those poor little helpless mites who are dependent upon the Milk and Ice Association for their well being? Surely many grownups than have already contributed have planned to do so.

Mere planning will not feed those hungry little mouths. It takes giving again and then some more.

The fund today totals $2,137.17. The association has 300 babies, each one of which must have its quart of certified milk each day if it is to live and grow into a strong, healthy citizen, neighbor perhaps to your children. Will you do something towards accomplishing that much to be desired end?

FARMER'S WIFE GETS STRENGTH

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Schoolfield, Va.—"My mother had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I decided to take it for my own troubles and found great relief. I was hardly able to stand on my feet sometimes and now I feel better than I have for several years. I credit the Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with my present good health. I have taken five bottles of it and I am now able to do all my housework and sewing, feed my chickens, milk the cow and tend the pigs, and feel fine."—Mrs. J. C. Pasteur

His Work Lives After Him

The story of medicine since Pasteur reads like a romance. A wonderful story of achievement, of work and struggle, disappointment and hope. A constant fight against ignorance, which cloaked diseases. Though no longer living, the influence of his noble lifework, zeal and devotion will never die, but will live on forever, for those upon whom his mantle has fallen, carry on the work as conscientiously as he did, being attracted by the same motives.

HITS HOMER, FINE REMITTED

WILMINGTON, N. C., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Frank Roscoe, of the Wilmington Club of the Eastern North Carolina League, had to hit a home run or pay a $10 automobile speeding fine under order of the municipal court. The penalty would be remitted on condition Roscoe knocked out a home run. He hit the homer.

Team Unable To Get Field

By TOM BIRKS

INDEPENDENT football followers were dealt a staggering blow late yesterday when Father Sullivan, coach of the North Side Catholic Men's Club, one of the greatest independent football teams in the tri-state district, stated definitely that C. M. C. would not be on the gridiron this season. Father Sullivan stated that being unable to have home grounds hampered the club, and the uncertainty of being able to field the same machine week after week with added competition caused the North Side officials to decide to watch the race this season from the sidelines.

HAD FINE RECORD

C. M. C., ever since the time it emerged from the Traders to the Men's Club, has been in the final stages every year in the mythical race for premier honors. With Whitney Belack, Merl Cave, Dolan, Perkins, and other stars in the lineup, the Yellow and Black was a much-feared outfit. Now that Father Sullivan has decided to withdraw from competition for this season at least, one of the best independent machines ever in the district will be a matter of memory. It is reported that Belack will go to college this fall, but the rest of the stars will probably be seen with either West View or the newly formed Twenty-seventh Ward Traders, handled by Bill Dummer.

Independent football was again jarred when Buck Weaver, for many years the guiding spirit of the Carrick Odds, was ordered to Montana for the winter to try and regain his health. The game's followers all over the circuit will wish Buck plenty of luck while away.

So, with Weaver not on hand, the running of the Carrick club will fall to Jimmy Broderick. Jimmy handled the club in the final game with Burns at West View last winter.

CHRISTY PARK TO RETURN

Despite rumors to the contrary, Christy Park will be back on the gridiron this fall. George Dorsey made this statement last evening, and at a club meeting tomorrow evening the plans for the season will be mapped out.

The independent football season in the Tube City will officially open September 13 at the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport, when the McKeesport Shamrocks celebrate with a dance and party. Every one who is anybody in the independent racket will be on hand for "Shamrock" night.

Jack Reddington, who handles the business for the Shamrocks, invites every one to be present. The Shamrocks are stepping out this fall to contest the right for the Tube City titular championship, and Reddington seems chock full of confidence. The party is one week from tomorrow night.

Manager Freddy Iverson, well in health and back in harness, seems very confident regarding the chances of the Olympics this season. "Just a little hitch regarding the grounds and then preparations for the best season we have ever had," is the way Iverson puts it. And Iverson is one of the most popular men in the game.

AUTO RACE DATE SET

Forced to postpone the races scheduled Labor Day afternoon, when rain just before the start made the track dangerous, officials of the Keystone Recreation Corporation, owners of the famous Bridgeville Speedway, will run off the postponed events next Saturday afternoon, starting at 3 o'clock.

No changes in the entries will be made for next Saturday's races, the same 18 drivers who were scheduled to start Labor Day agreeing to compete at the famous half-mile board track.

The main event next Saturday will be the 75-mile affair, bringing together some of the leading automobile drivers in this vicinity. The first race will be a consolation affair of 25 miles. The Labor Day rain checks will be honored.

J. L. THOMAS, RELIANCE LIFE NINES TO BATTLE

The crucial game of the City League championship battle will be staged at Crafton Field this evening, when the J. L. Thomas nine hooks up with Ottie Cochrane's Reliance Life aggregation. The Insurance boys are making a wonderful fight to force a playoff with the Hermes-Grove team, and this evening's battle is the one that makes or breaks the Reliance outfit. Manager Cochrane will probably send Formley to the mound, while Zappa may depend upon Joos. The game will be called at 6:30 p. m.

BILLICK WINS AS PRO

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(INS.)—Dan Billick, of Pittsburgh, celebrated his professional debut by stopping Joe Ritchie, of Newark, N. J., in the second round at the Velodrome here last night. He outclassed his opponent from the start. Referee Danny Sullivan stopping the bout to save Ritchie from further punishment.

Pitt Dubs Dummy "Howard Harpster"

WINDBER, Pa., Sept. 5.—Will all readers of this item concerning the doings of Pitt's 1928 football squad, in training here, please call it to the attention of Mr. Howard Harpster.

Mr. Harpster is Carnegie Tech's star halfback, there is no doubt about that, and Harpster might not understand the significance of the name that has been given the Pitt tackling dummy, which will be maltreated today for the first time this year.

The Pitt coaches have dubbed the dummy Howard Harpster, which is meant to cast no reflection on the reasoning powers of the original, but rather is intended to furnish an incentive for the Panther candidates. Naturally, they will put additional enthusiasm into their efforts, when they dive at the inanimate namesake of the Tech halfback. Please understand this, Howard.

The charging sled was given a free trip up and down the practice field, by the line candidates yesterday, and with the appearance of the tackling dummy, it is evident that the coaches think the Pitt candidates are rounding into good physical condition. Helmets and shoulder pads will be issued today.

Jock gave the squad a few new signals yesterday, and three teams walked through formations. The same lineup was used for the first string, Donchess and Guarino, ends; Montgomery and Getto, tackles; Capt. Fox and Demollo, guards; Carr, center, with Edwards, Parkinson, Vansa and Rooney, in the backfield.

ST. VINCENT'S DRILLS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—Coaches Crowe and Edwards are teaching the Notre Dame plays to their charges at St. Vincent College. In the practices to date Crowe is handling the line while Edwards teaches the backs.

JAP DOUDS OUT AGAIN

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—Forrest (Jap) Douds, sophomore tackle of last year, who was prominently mentioned for All-America honors and who was the victim of a skyrocket accident in this city July 4, was the first casualty of the preliminary football training at Washington and Jefferson College. Colliding with a teammate in a mixup in signals, Douds received a gash above his eye which required four stitches to close it.

WAYNESBURG PRACTICES

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Sept. 5.—Preliminary grid activities were started this week, when 35 candidates reported to Coach Frank Wolf. It was one of the lightest groups of men ever seen here, with few of the candidates tipping the scales over the 170-pound mark.

JOHNNY FARRELL FAILS TO QUALIFY FOR P. G. A.

FLUSHING, N. Y., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Johnny Farrell, National open golf champion, failed to qualify for the Professional Golfers' Association championship in the Metropolitan District qualifying round here yesterday.

Farrell, evidently far off his game, scored two rounds of 76 for a total of 152, two strokes beyond the last qualifying score.

Leo Diegel, Canadian open champion, led the field of 78 with 137 for the 36-hole test. Second place went to Johnny Golden with 144. Gene Sarazen, of Fresh Meadow was a stroke back of Golden as was Bill Mehlhorn, of Fenimore.

NAVY LEFT OFF '29 ARMY CARD

WEST POINT, N. Y., Sept. 5.—Chances for a resumption of the Army-Navy football relations in 1929 were eliminated today when the military academy announced its 1929 schedule without mention of the Navy.

The most important addition to the schedule is the University of Illinois. A two-year agreement has been entered with the Illinois school whereby the Mid-Westerners come here next year and the Cadets go to Illinois the year afterward.

The longest trip on the schedule is to California to play Leland Stanford University. The Westerners play in the East this year.

The schedule as announced by Maj. Gen. William R. Smith, commandant, is:

October 6—Gettysburg College.
October 12—Davidson College.
October 19—Harvard (probably at Cambridge).
October 26—Yale (probably at New Haven).
Novemer 2—University of South Dakota.
November 9—Illinois.
November 16—Dickinson College.
November 23—Ohio Wesleyan University.
November 30—Notre Dame at New York.
December 28—Leland Stanford University.

BOUTS ARRANGED FOR POLICE MEET

The amateur fistic program to be run off at the Stadium Saturday in connection with the tenth annual Bureau of Police Field Day has been completed. There will be six contests between high-class amateurs in addition to a special bout between two policemen and a wrestling match between two members of the force.

The registered amateur bouts will bring together the following lads: 112-pound class, Nat Litfin, Willow A. C., vs George Evans, Swissvale A. C., and A. Iovino, Swissvale A. C., vs. Herman Foling, Willow A. C.; 118-pound class, Freddie Smith, Carnegie, vs. Bob Belanti, Twenty-seventh Ward A. C.; 135-pound class, John Leonard, unattached, vs. Tom Fairful, Swissvale A. C.; 147-pound class, Russell Verge, Willow A. C., vs. Leo Kyberski, Swissvale A. C.; 160-pound class, Dave Burry, McKeesport, vs. Norman Letsch, Willow A. C.

The special bout will be between two policemen attached to No. 6 station, L. A. Bond and Hughey Haggerty, the latter a former well-known Lawrenceville boxer. The wrestling match will be between Lieut. George Hook and Motorcycle Officer Robert W. Buel.

P. WANER GETS 200 HITS

Paul Waner, outfielder, who is leading the National League in the matter of hitting doubles and triples and who is within two points of the batting leadership, achieved another distinction yesterday when he slammed out his 200th hit of the season. He is the first National Leaguer to achieve this mark. Brother Lloyd is Paul's closest rival for total hits honors, Sprout has 194.

FIGHT RESULTS

At Bethlehem—Babe Herman defeated Gene Baldoni, 10 rounds; Johnny McGinley defeated Jimmy Rappaport, 6 rounds; Henry Hart defeated Babe Baroni, 6 rounds.

At Boston—Ernie Schaaf defeated Big Boy Peterson, 10 rounds; Kid Glover knocked out Arty Ryan, 2 rounds; Shadow Bowden knocked out Texas Quinine, 3 rounds; Joe Cabana defeated Walter Sells, 4 rounds; Jimmy Byrne defeated Bill Hartwell, 6 rounds.

At Troy, N. Y.—Nick Testo won on foul over Eddie Dempsey, 4 rounds.

At Wilmington, Del.—Harry Wallach defeated Young Ketchel, 8 rounds; Benny Valger defeated Scott McDade, 8 rounds.

MID-ATLANTIC SERIES SET

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The play-off series to determine the pennant winner in the Middle Atlantic League for 1928 will open at Fairmont next Friday, it was decided here yesterday at a conference attended by President Elmer Dailey of the league and representatives of the Fairmont and Wheeling clubs. Wheeling won the first half season flag and Fairmont the second half.

The second game of the series will be played at Fairmont on Saturday, and the third and fourth games on Sunday and Monday at Wheeling. If a fifth contest is necessary to decide a pennant winner, the scene of the game will be determined by the toss of a coin.

The Middle Atlantic champion will play the Blue Ridge titleholders following the Fairmont-Wheeling playoff.

The umpires for the Middle Atlantic series will be designated by President Dailey later in the week.

SCHENLEY PARK TENNIS ASSOCIATION REORGANIZE

Bernard Grosman was elected president, David Ladsay vice president, Jeannette Miller secretary and Albert Hantman treasurer at a reorganization meeting of the Schenley Park Tennis Association last night.

The association first came into being a few weeks ago with only four members. More than 50 members attended the reorganization meeting yesterday. The aim of the association, which is to improve playing conditions on Schenley Park courts, is responsible for its great popularity.

President of Council James Malone, was an honor guest. Meyer Shapiro, attorney and net enthusiast, awarded prizes to the winners in the association's first tournament. Miss Miller won in the women's singles and Herbert Lomask was the men's singles winner.

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER [illegible], 1928 SEVENTEEN

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

Maranville Likely to Approach World Series Record of Adams—Bush Probably Manager Here Again Next Year—Bronson Picks Stribling as Best Prospect to Succeed Tunney.

RABBIT MARANVILLE has been shifted around to such an extent that he has played with five of the eight National League clubs in the last nine seasons.

Rabbit Maranville

This might appear to indicate that he has not been the steadiest player in the world, but that he possesses greater durability and native class than many pastimers who adhered more closely to the training rules is attested by the fact that if the Cardinals win the National League pennant, as seems strongly probable, Maranville will earn the distinction of having played in two world series 14 years apart.

THE little shortstop's first appearance in the post-season derby was made with the sensational Braves in 1914, before he was 22 years old, and now he is likely to figure in the classic again 14 seasons later.

Only one player has beaten that record for endurance and lasting major league ability. The lone diamond performer to surpass it was Babe Adams, former Pirate pitcher, who was the world series hero of 1909, and pitched again in the Bucs' blue ribbon tussle with Washington in 1925 after a lapse of 16 years.

SHOULD the Athletics nose out the Yankees for the American League pennant, an opportunity will be created for a Philadelphia player to beat the records of both Adams and Maranville.

Ty Cobb played for the Tigers against the Corsairs in the world series of 1909 and a chance to appear in the October stakes again this year before his anticipated retirement would give him the record of having participated in two title struggles separated by 19 seasons.

THE revived report that Donie Bush intended to quit as manager of the Pirates to become pilot of the Tigers was ridiculous on its face, apart from the implied disloyalty to a loyal employer of which Bush indignantly declares he never would be guilty. For as a matter of fact Bush could not quit the Bucs and remain in organized baseball even if he desired to do so, inasmuch as there is a reserve clause in his contract just as is contained in the pacts of the players. Big league club owners are not taking any risks of good managers getting away since the absence of a reserve clause permitted Miller Huggins to leave the St. Louis Nationals after the 1917 season and sign with the Yankees. Bush could not leave the Pittsburgh club for another berth in the organized game unless released, and as President Dreyfuss says he is perfectly satisfied with his work you may paste it in your hat that Donie will be manager of the Pirates again in 1929.

Babe Ruth

WITH only 24 games remaining on the Yankees' schedule and Babe Ruth still 14 home runs short of the number required to beat the record of 60 that he hung up last year, the chance of a new mark being established by the Bambino this year has become rather slim.

According to the swat king himself, he is not even trying for new figures. He says that the ambition he had in that direction earlier in the season has become secondary to his desire to help his club win the pennant. The Athletics have made the race so close that the Babe declares he is now giving all his attention to the winning of ball games rather than to the making of home runs.

"FOR some time I haven't been bothering about trying to make 61 or more homers this year," Ruth is quoted. "If I had kept after home runs I could have broken my record. But I figure I can do the team more good by making sure of a hit when it's needed. I can hit into left field seven times out of 10 and anything I hit over there goes for two bases.

"Oh, I'll take a swing at one when there's nobody on, but when there's somebody on I figure it's better to make sure of a hit and not take a chance on knocking the ball out of the lot. What we've got to do now is win ball games.

"I THINK we'll win, and I don't know but what I may break my record. I hit 17 last September. I need only 14 more and we've got 24 games to play. But I'm not thinking about it. What I want to do is get into another world series. My ambition is to play in 10 world series. I'm going to be in 10 world series if I have to play until I'm 80. I've been in eight."

VARIOUS opinions have been expressed as to what heavyweight fighter has the best chance to succeed Gene Tunney as champion, but Jimmy Bronson takes the view that the INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 5.—The Pirates spent a goodly part of their off day in traveling, the Freebooters reaching this city before noon today, en route to St. Louis, where tomorrow they will jump off in a four-game series with the league-leading Cardinals.

The Buccos are due in St. Louis a little before 2 o'clock, this afternoon, St. Louis time. As many of the players are worn and tired from their strenuous activities of the past few weeks they will make themselves comfortable. The schedule over the Labor Day period, coming as it did on top of the St. Louis scraps, was hard on most of the Pittsburgh boys.

With the exception of George Grantham the team should be in good shape for the impending fights with the leaders. In the event that Grantham is not able to go to his post tomorrow, Paul Waner will continue at the gateway.

NOT OUT OF WOODS YET

The Redbirds are not altogether out of the woods yet, judging by the club standings. They still enjoy a four-game lead over the second-place Bruins, but more than three weeks remain, and a lot of things can happen in that time. However, it seems to be entirely up to the Pirates to start something in the four games on tap.

The Buccos gave a very bad exhibition as they tasted defeat at the hand of the Cubs yesterday at Forbes Field. Both clubs performed like sandlotters in many spots, but in the ninth the Bruins were able to break a deadlock on the last flash of loose play, the score being 9 to 8.

All pitchers taking part in the game with the exception of Freddie Blake, who finished for Joe McCarthy, were accorded poor support. Fred Fussell and Art Nehf started out to make it a southpaw duel, but in the first inning the Pirate infield messed up a double-play chance. Traynor's wide throw to Bartell on Cuyler's grounder could not be held by Dick and the bases were filled with none out.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Just by way of offering encouragement to those earnest souls who were wondering what could be done about "the American League situation" less than five weeks ago, I am gratified today to announce that the greatest crowd ever to see a baseball game will sit in on the famous Yankee-Athletic double-header on Sunday next.

Present estimates are that 82,000 will view this premiere of a series that figures to be the abiding factor in the ultimate disposition of the American League pennant and the gendarmerie, making ready for a world series riot, reckon that the turnaways will number 25,000 more.

An ordinary doubleheader on a New York Sunday would be good for at least a 50,000 crowd. This one, carrying all the appeal of a

Sigman Due Today For Fight

JIM SIGMAN, of Toledo, the heavyweight who boxes Ike McFowler, of Johnstown, for Jules Beck at Duquesne, Pa., tomorrow night, will arrive in Pittsburgh today and indulge in a final light workout. McFowler will come by automobile from Johnstown tomorrow morning Promoter Beck announced.

Beck also announced that his advance sale for the show is most gratifying, the fans evincing a keen interest in the testing of McFowler, a new district sensation, by the more experienced Sigman, who is a former Navy heavyweight champion who has fought Jack Renault and other well-known opponents.

Some interesting action is promised in the four six-round preliminaries of the Duquesne show, in which Slambang Taylor will meet Mule Brown, Joe Louder will take on Leo Kyburski, Battling Gizzy will box Young Angelo and Bobby

Dukes' Grid Prospects Tomorrow

The first of a series of analytical articles on the prospects of the college football elevens in the tristate district, written by Jess Carver, will appear in tomorrow's issue. It will outline the chances of Duquesne University.

Carnegie Tech's prospects will be reviewed in Friday's issue, and others will follow in rapid succession.

SETS STANDARD

Back in 1912, from April 11 to July 3, Rube Marquard, then with the New York Giants, won 19 games in a row to tie the record of Tim Keefe, established in 1888, for the number of consecutive victories for a pitcher in the major leagues. The next best record is 16 straight, held jointly by Walter Johnson and Joe Wood and also set in 1912. Back in 1875, pitching for Boston in the National Association, before the organization of the the National League, A. G. Spalding won 24 straight and then 22 straight in the same season, but the competition in those days obviously was not as keen as in modern major league baseball.

SPEAKING OF SPORTS by HARRY KECK SPORTS EDITOR

WHEN the New York Athletic Commission yesterday suspended Knute Hansen pending a clearing of the status of his many managers, it apparently blocked a deal whereby the Melancholy Dane was slated to be elected by acclamation of the promoters and managers to the heavyweight championship throne recently vacated by Gene Tunney when the latter resigned.

For a man who has not done any fighting in months and whose sole claim to fame appears to be based on his one-round knockout of Phil Scott before the Englishman became acclimated over here, Hansen certainly has been in the prints considerably lately. His name has been ballyhooed in all of the papers through the complications regarding his ownership and the blah-blahing he has received from the yesmen who kowtow to those who have an interest in him.

IF HE never does another worthy thing, Promoter Humbert Fugazy performed a service for the boxing game and the public when he ripped the curtain from in front of the Hansen buildup by offering to let his heavyweight, Roberto Roberti, fight Knute for sweet charity's sake and bluffed Tex Rickard and the other sponsors of the great (?) Dane into a showdown and backdown.

Hansen may be all that his boosters say he is; at least, he has shown signs of promise from time to time, but to date he has done nothing to warrant the almost idiotic hoorah over him. He should be forced to fight his way from the ground up with the others in the field of contenders in the proposed heavyweight elimination tournament. In fact, everybody in the tournament should be made to fight from scratch and no favoritism should be shown, as has been the case in other similar tournaments of recent and fragrant memory.

NOT boasting any great collegiate football teams of its own, Cleveland can lay claim to having more native sons acting as captains of big elevens in other sections of the country than any other town of its size in the land. This, of course, is a natural condition, as its leading scholastic lights have to

ON WAY TO NEW MARK

Lefty Grove, fast ball pitcher of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics, has turned in 13 consecutive victories and is aiming for a new record. He has won 21 games in all, and lost only six, five of the defeats being administered by the New York Yankees, with whom the Athletics are vieing keenly for the American League pennant. Despite his ill luck against the Yankees, Grove is being primed to face them twice in the crucial series which opens in New York Sunday. He has lost three decisions to Johnson, one to Shealey and the other to Pennock. His only other setback has been handed him by the Browns with Pitcher Alvin Crowder besting him. Crowder, by the way, had a winning streak of 10 games before he was stopped. Pitcher Ray Kremer of the Pirates, after getting away to a bad start, now has won nine straight.

PIRATES

The Buccos put over a double shuffle on Wilson's grounder, one run scoring. Riggs Stephenson followed with a homer into the right-field stands making the round produce three runs.

Before the contest entered the fourth inning the Pirates forced a deadlock. But Lefty Grimm combed Fussell for a homer into the right-field stands in the fourth with one on, the wallop taking Fussell out of action in favor of Homer Blankenship who made his debut under rather unfortunate circumstances.

Adam Comorosky slammed a homer to the right-center pocket in the fifth with L. Waner on to help to close the gap. A run made by the Cubs after Carmen Hill had relieved Blankenship in the sixth put the foe out in front with three tallies, but the Buccos hopped on Guy Bush in the seventh and tied things up again.

Hack Wilson, after making two costly muffs, opened the ninth with a walk and eventually scored the winning run on Hargreaves' wide throw to first in an attempt to complete a double play with the bases loaded and one out. Trayner took Beck's grounder and threw home for a force, but the catcher's shot to Paul Waner was wide, Stephenson scoring.

VETERANS BACK TO BOLSTER SQUAD

By JESS M. CARVER.

DUQUESNE, the question mark of the Tri-State Conference, will set out on what promises to be a rocky road of football today when the Duke's grid camp opens on the Bluff. The largest squad in the history of the school will be given its initial workout this afternoon, after being outfitted by Graduate Manager Holohan this morning. More than 75 men reported to Coaches Layden and Reagan today.

The squad, as it reported to Layden today, is well sprinkled with veterans from last year's eleven, the first to be directed at Duquesne by the former Notre Dame star. It is the task of the Duke coaches this year to whip a team into shape that will be able to withstand the wallops and bumps that are usually served out to teams competing in this part of the country.

Unfortunately for Coach Layden, who would like to bring his team along slowly, taking perhaps two or even three years for the job, Pittsburgh fans will not stand for a consistent loser, and it is very likely that unless the Dukes show something this fall, Elmer F. will hear the call of the wolf pack.

WORKOUT TO BE LIGHT

The workout today will be a very light one, consisting of setting up exercises and maybe a bit of punting, passing and general ball handling. Tomorrow the real work will start, and will continue until the opening of the playing season.

The Dukes face a tough schedule, meeting Wash-Jeff, Geneva, Westminster, St. Thomas College of Scranton, Waynesburg, Bethany and Thiel. The Wash-Jeff game is, of course, the big shot of the card. It marks the entry of the locals into the competition among the Big Four.

Carnegie Tech introduced a charging machine into its grid training for the first time in history yesterday. Bob Waddel took his linemen in hand and gave them one sweet workout, having them drive the heavy wooden contraption up and down the Tartan Bowl field until enough beef had been worked off to start a wholesale meat shop.

In the meantime, Wally Steffen took the backs and ends and gave them a strenuous drill in passing. Capt. Howdy Harpster threw 'em to one set of ends and backs and John Kareis, the Monaca Kid, flipped them to the others. The linemen had the toughest day of it.

The Skibo athletes are in fine trim, and it is the hope of the coaches to stage a scrimmage Saturday.

A training table has been established and despite the tough workout of yesterday, there was enough pep left in the boys to shut Saul Meltzner out of the money in the rush for the hash. Shaughnecy was first at the table, Dresher placed second and Tony Sweet won the show place. Shaughnecy paid $5.13 on the nose to win.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

most promising man of all has been generally overlooked. His choice is young Stribling, who meets Johnny Squires in New York tomorrow night.

Bill Miller, associated with Bronson in the management of a stable of boxers, recently agreed to a match between Ad Warren, the North Carolina collegian, and Stribling, but as soon as Bronson heard of it he called it off, admitting that he considered Stribling far too good for Warren.

"STRIBLING right now is at least 25 per cent better than I ever knew him to be before," Bronson said. "It is my opinion that he is going to have as much to say as any one about who shall succeed Tunney, and probably more.

Young Stribling

"While I was down South I had a chance to see Stribling box, and I figured I might as well get the latest line on him before signing for Warren to box him. Stribling showed me enough to make me decide I would be a sucker to let him get in with Warren.

"Just to make sure I went to see Stribling box again a few days later. He was just as good as the other time. That was good enough to convince me that he has a grand chance to win the title.

"Warren could have picked up a young fortune in a fight with Stribling down below the Mason and Dixon line, but I think too much of Ad to let him meet that fellow right now. After all, Warren is just a beginner."

"IN WHAT way is Stribling better?" Wilbur Wood asked Bronson. "In every way than he was the last time in New York. The most important thing is that he has cut out the Zbyszko stuff and devotes all his time in the ring to fighting. Stribling seems to have found himself and to realize that he has the stuff in him if he will only give it a chance to work out. Take a tip from me—Stribling is at least an even money shot against any heavyweight in the business right now, and it would not surprise me if he were to be sitting on the throne a year from now."

PETE SCOTT was given a warm welcome by the fans at Forbes Field when he reappeared in the Pirate lineup yesterday after a long absence. It was his first appearance in a game since July 26, when he narrowly escaped a broken neck in a collision with the left field wall at the Polo Grounds in New York while trying to catch a long fly from the bat of Travis Jackson.

Pete Scott

Scott has been pronounced as sound as ever by the club doctors and says he feels no ill effects of his injury. He soon will be able to show his old activity and speed and will be a handy man for the Bucs to have around during the remainder of their fight to land as high as possible in the first division, from which they were ousted yesterday by the narrow margin of one percentage point.

HOMER BLANKENSHIP was not brilliantly successful in his debut as a Pirate pitcher, but at that the Dallas recruit appears to have a lot of stuff and should give a better account of himself after he overcomes his first-day wildness.

Fred Fussell's pitching before Blankenship went to the mound was again disappointing. In view of Fussell's failure to show form in several of his recent games, he probably will be dropped from the list of regular starters for the time being. It is Manager Bush's intention to depend upon Grimes, Kremer, Brame and Hill as the starters in the St. Louis series that starts tomorrow.

BOYS' WORLD BASEBALL CHAMPIONSHIP FRIDAY

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Two kid baseball teams from the two coasts of the nation will be fighting for the boys' world's championship, when Oakland, Cal., and Worcester, Mass., meet Friday in the first of a three-game series at Comiskey Park. The two clubs are the survivors of 8,764 teams with a roster of 12,000 boys under 16 years of age that started play in the American Legion sand lot tournament in May.

SEED DE BUS NANCY CAPTURES PUPPY STAKE

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., Sept. 5.—(AP.)—The Wild Life League trials in progress at the Huidekoper farms here, have brought out the largest entry list Nancy, owned by J. H. Barnes, of Connellsville, won the first prize in the puppy stake. In the derby, Dauntless the Devil, a pointer, owned by Jack Dean, Baltimore baseball magnate, was declared the winner by the judges.

go away from home to enter the larger institutions of learning.

Don Greenshields, captain and tackle of the Penn State team, is a Cleveland product. So is Harold Baysinger, quarterback and captain of the Syracuse University team. And so, also, are Fullback George Rich, captain of the Michigan eleven; Al Cornsweet, fullback and captain at Brown, and Dudley Schoales, right end and captain of Cornell.

Other Clevelanders starring on outside teams include Leo Raskowski, star tackle at Ohio State, and Ray Novotny, captain and halfback at Ashland (O.) College. Cleveland's home college elevens are Case, Western Reserve and John Carroll.

ST. XAVIER COLLEGE of Cincinnati is anxious to get on the Carnegie Tech schedule for a home-and-home series beginning next fall and has opened negotiations in that direction. The St. Xavier elevens have been getting stronger and stronger each season and have been running up some big scores, with the result that they are finding it exceedingly difficult to arrange games with some of the better established elevens. In their present stage of development they would be anything but a setup for Tech.

BASQUE BOUNCES BACK

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—(AP.)—Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight, returned yesterday from a stay of several months in Europe. The Spaniard announced he earned 200,000 pesetas in bouts overseas and expects to engage in elimination contests to decide Tunney's successor.

FIGHT

Burns will be seen against Al Waldeck.

Mike Moran, the local featherweight, is back in training and will be ready for bouts within a week or two. He is under the management of Bobby Lerman, of Midland, who may be reached by calling Midland 239-J.

Bad News Taylor is back in McKeesport after a boxing tour of the West and is anxious to box any of the featherweights, Johnny Datto and U. S. Carpentier preferred. He defeated Soldier Wallace at Ft. Thomas, Ky., last Friday night and recently won over Young Charles at Terre Haute. Among others, he has boxed Larry Goldberg, Midget Mike O'Dowd, Al Dundee, Harry Forbes and Johnny McCoy. Promoters may reach him by calling McKeesport 9284.

Walcott Langford and Frankie Schoell meet in a return bout at Buffalo tonight. Langford recently grabbed a decision over the Buffalo veteran in a bout in Toledo.

Oak Till, who recently boxed Garfield Johnson at Duquesne, meets Vic McLaughlin in a 10-round bout in Buffalo next Monday night. Pete Petrolle and Jimmy Goodrich clash on the same card.

Roberto Roberti, the Italian heavyweight contender, boxes King Solomon in the main bout at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight. Jimmy Urban, local light-heavyweight, meets Amadeo Crilla in a six-round preliminary.

Leo Clements, local hevyweight star, boxes Eddie Sims, Cleveland's leading simon-pure heavyiwght, in the main bout of an amateur show in the Taylor Bowl, Cleveland, next Monday night. Clements has knocked out Nick Gavin and Jack McGrath in his last two appearances in Cleveland.

desperate stretch-run between the two leaders, simply can't miss. It may even outdraw the world series, provided the annual nuisance is visited upon New York. If it isn't, the Sunday games will more than double any world series attendances in Philadelphia and St. Louis where the capacities of the ball parks are comparatively limited.

Just at the moment, New York is going through a virtual dress rehearsal of the world series scenes, with a reserved seat sale for Sunday scheduled to be opened tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock and the prospect of night lines forming at the general admission gates late on Saturday for the formal opening of the portals at 10 o'clock the following morning. Yankee officials expect to sell their 22,000 reserved seats in less than 24 hours.

It will take them about that long to sell half the ball club if it doesn't win the pennant, according to stories in circulation, the big idea being that the present Yankees have practically run their race as far as future campaigns are concerned. Huggins, however, is saying nothing about this with great steadiness; in fact, he went so far today as to intimate that he was content with the Yankees as they stood or maybe he meant fell. Anyhow, he said he didn't plan to use Lyn Lary this year even if Oakland permitted this young man to come East in time for the closing weeks of the campaign.

ROUND TABLE of BUSINESS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

THE flat glass industry is constantly in a state of transition, but some of the most pronounced changes in its history are taking place at present. The sudden realization of the safety factor in shatter-proof glass and the perfection of new low-cost processes are putting a premium on engineering development and are throwing old equipment into the discard.

The greatest changes are in the plate glass business. Methods for making better grades of window glass are lowering some of the barriers which formerly separated the two products.

FIVE producers of plate glass have major improvement programs under way involving either the building of entirely new plants or the replacement of old equipment with more modern machinery. This does not take minor changes in plants into consideration.

Shatter-proof glass is not an altogether new product, but only within the past year has it been discovered by the motor industry. It now promises to be the outstanding engineering change in automobile construction of the next few years.

THE Triplex Safety Glass Company and other pioneers in the field are increasing their plant capacity. Libbey-Owens Sheet Glass Company has started production of laminated glass and has been supplying the Ford windshields. Pittsburgh Plate Glass has a half interest in a $1,000,000 plant being built at Creighton. This will be completed in December. Cadillac, LaSalle and two of the Chrysler models are being supplied by Pittsburgh Plate. The American Window Glass Company is planning to start production soon.

GENERAL MOTORS CORPORATION, through its subsidiary, the National Plate Glass Company, has one of the greatest glass developments under way at Ottawa, Ill. A new plant for the production of about 24,000,000 cubic feet of plate glass a year has been started. A modern continuous grinding and polishing method will be used. The plant will be equipped to make glass seven sixty-fourths of an inch thick, which is suitable for the laminations of shatter-proof glass. The capacity of the plant will be equivalent to about one-fifth of the present production of the United States. It will replace an old plant at Ottawa and will supplement the output of another existing factory at that point.

LIBBEY-OWENS SHEET GLASS COMPANY is building an addition to its plate glass capacity. The Ford Plate Glass Company is also building a modern addition to its plant. Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company is remodeling its Ford City factory. Standard Plate Glass is installing new grinding and polishing equipment.

There is a wide variation in the types of glass being used in the shatter-proof product. The finest grade consists of two sheets of plate glass each of which is about one-eighth of an inch thick. Much of the present output is made of sheet glass. This does not have the luster and the accurately finished surface of plate glass.

THE trend in the window glass industry has been away from the older production methods and towards the use of machines which draw a continuous sheet. The freedom from the waves found in the new product has opened the shatter-proof field to window glass makers. Before the advent of sheet glass and the demand for safety glass the automobile field was the exclusive property of the plate glass industry.

A high rate of automobile production and building activity has given the plate glass makers a good volume of business this year, but prices remain at low levels, with little hope of improvement. Foreign competition has been responsible for price declines of 40 per cent since July, 1925.

THE installation of new equipment has been forced upon producers by the necessity to reduce costs and to meet the demand for small sizes developed by the popularity of the closed automobile. This increased capacity may tend to aggravate overproduction unless it is followed by the closing of many old plants.

The problem of foreign competition can only be solved by a higher tariff. The case of both plate and window glass makers has been before the Tariff Commission for several years. A hearing on the window glass tariff will be held next week.

PACIFIC RAIL DEAL PUT UP TO I. C. C.

International News Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 5.—Purchase of the entire Northwestern Pacific Railroad by the Southern Pacific now hinges only on approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, it was announced today.

Application for a permit to take over the half interest in the road now owned by the Santa Fe Railroad has been filed with the commission, it was stated. The Northwestern Pacific is at present owned jointly by the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe.

The change in ownership will not affect the present management or personnel of the Northwestern Pacific, E. H. Maggard, president and general manager of the railway, said. The Northwestern Pacific will continue to be operated as an independent line.

Definite announcement as to policy and plans for further development of the railroad, however, is being withheld pending the action of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

WHAT'S ON THE AIR

THE National Light Opera Company will broadcast a version of Gilbert and Sullivan's "The Sorcerer," through WCAE and other stations of the NBC System at 10:30 o'clock tonight. The cast will include Rosalie Wolfe, Jackson King, George O'Brien, John Oakley, Frank Cuthbert, Harvey Hindermeyer, Myrtle Leonard, Paula Heminghaus and Irma De Baun.

"The Enchantress," by Victor Herbert, featuring Jessica Dragonette, will be produced during the Philco hour to be heard through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 9 o'clock. This operetta of two acts was first produced in New York in 1911. The book and lyrics are by Harry B. Smith and Frederic de Gresac.

The Palmolive Revelers, just returned from musical conquests abroad, will again be present in the Palmolive hour to be broadcast over WCAE at 9 o'clock. The entire program will be indicative of the "Welcome Home" spirit, with which they will be greeted by radio listeners as well as fellow artists. Selections will include "Blue Shadows" and "Someday Somewhere."

"That Old Gang of Mine," in which the singers reminisce of old friends, will be presented by the Sylvania Foresters, a male quartet, over KDKA at 8:30 o'clock. Opening with "In the Gloaming," and "Sylvania Song," the Foresters will proceed to "Baby Days" and "Down by the Old Mill Stream." Penn's wistful "Smilin' Through;" the jolly air, "By the Water Melon Vine," by Allen, and Victor Herbert's romantic "A Kiss in the Dark" will be other numbers. "Accordiana," written especially for the instrument from which it takes its name, by Charles Magnante, and Zez Confrey's "Dizzy Fingers," will be heard as instrumental solos.

Richard Maxwell, tenor, will broadcast a program through the NBC System, including KDKA, at 7:45 o'clock. Faust's aria from the Garden Scene of the opera, "Faust," by Gounod, two songs by Oley Speaks, the American composer; Nevin's "Little Boy Blue," and "I Shall Know," by Mana Zucca, will be included in the recital.

Tonight's Columbia programs over WJAS will originate in the key station WOR. The first, at 9 o'clock, will be another in the series of "theme" programs entitled "Long, Long Ago," and will feature music of the time of the old masters. At 9:30 the United Military Band is to be heard in its regular mid-week concert, following which at 10 o'clock the Kolster Radio Hour will present a program starring Vincent Lopez and his orchestra. The Buccaneers, with their jolly old cap'n, are scheduled to go through their merry antics at 10:30 o'clock.

These selections will be rendered during the Power period over KDKA at 10:30 o'clock: "Funiculi-Funicula," quartet; "Irish Love Song," contralto; "Believe Me, If All Those Endearing Young Charms," quartet; "Where My Caravan Has Rested," duet; "The World Is Waiting for the Sunrise," quartet; "Eyes of Irish Blue," tenor, and "Sweet and Low," quartet.

DEATH ROLL

The Rev. Alphonse J. Mayer.

The Rev. Alphonse J. Mayer, 53, pastor of St. Francis' Catholic Church, Munhall, for the last eight years, died Monday at St. Joseph's Hospital after a brief illness. Father Mayer was born in Pittsburgh. He completed his studies for the priesthood at St. Vincent's College, Beatty. He served as pastor at Carrick, Irwin and Coal Center. Father Mayer celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary to the priesthood on June 3 last. He leaves his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Mayer; two sisters, Mrs. T. J. Byrne, of Pittsburgh, and Mrs. H. J. Rahe, of Kansas City, Mo., and a brother, Charles J. Mayer, of Kansas City, Mo. Mass will be said at 10 a. m. tomorrow at St. Francis' Church. Burial will take place in St. George's cemetery.

W. Harry Ritenbaugh.

W. Harry Ritenbaugh, 36, Pittsburgh businessman and manager of the Scottdale division of the Waverly Oil Works Company, died Sunday at his home at Scottdale. Mr. Ritenbaugh was born in Pittsburgh and lived here practically all his life. He was a member and treasurer of Messiah Evangelical Lutheran Church and chairman of the executive council of the church for about three years. He was a member of various Masonic orders. He leaves his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Ritenbaugh, Sr., his wife, Mrs. Harriet Speed Ritenbaugh; four children, Helen, Harry, Marilyn and Marjory; three sisters and six brothers.

Charles Powers.

FROSTBURG, Md., Sept. 5.—Charles Powers, 18, manager of the Westinghouse employes store, Swissvale, Pa., died here yesterday, at the home of a sister, Miss Anna Powers. He was a member of St. Patrick's Catholic Church, the B. P. O. Elks and the Knights of Columbus. He leaves, beside his sister, his wife, and a brother, Frank T. Powers.

Marshall M. Sayre.

KEYSER, W. Va., Sept. 5.—Marshall M. Sayre, 81, retired Baltimore and Ohio railroad conductor, died here yesterday. Mr. Sayre was a Union veteran of the Civil war, and had undergone confinement in Libby prison. He leaves his wife and a daughter, Hallie Sayre.

George H. Becker.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Sept. 5.—George H. Becker, 70, a native of Pittsburgh, who for 45 years had made his home here, is dead. Mrs. Becker, two daughters, Nettie W. and Mrs. Margaret B. Leech; one brother, John Becker, all of Washington, and a sister, Mrs. Helena Schmidt, of Pittsburgh, survive.

"I'M ON THE JOB!"

"I've got to follow my love-sick boss around to see that his vamp friend doesn't get him in her clutches!"

"I've got to pretend to be his fiancee, and it's not bad at all, at all!"

"No matter what he says or does, I musn't let him weaken!"

"He told me to be firm even if I had to sock him in the jaw!"

"Girls, if you want to get the latest technique on how to land the gentleman friend, watch me!"

Go away gloom! There isn't room in town for you while merry Marion Davies cavorts in this new screen scream! Funnier than "The Fair Co-ed" and "The Patsy"—and that's saving a lot. As charming as a June romance—and that's putting it mildly. Broadway cheered the stage play. You'll cheer the screen play. And we believe you'll vote it the happiest visit you've made in months to any motion picture.

Why Procrastinate with Deafness?

THERE'S ONLY ONE WAY to find hearing, and the health and happiness that go with it. And that's to look for it. Each day that you put off the search is only another lost day of nervous irritation and social embarrassment.

So why not look for hearing today? And why not start the quest in the private consultation rooms of the

New Acousticon

We honestly believe that you will find it there, as so many others have, through the medium of the new and finer Acousticon—a scientific hearing aid with a tiny receiver, or earpiece no larger than a silver dime.

TEN-DAY FREE TRIAL

Take the instrument home with you if you wish. Test it for ten days. Be sure that it's the sort of hearing aid you've always hoped to find. Learn how clearly, how distinctly it transmits sounds to sub-normal ears. Probably you'll keep it, but if you don't, you may return it without charge or obligation.

If you find a call impossible, merely send your name and address to Dept. 41, for a free home test.

ACQUIT DRIVER OF DEATH CAR

George Nozakovich, of 604 Penn avenue, accused of involuntary manslaughter in the death of Walter L. Whitling, 18, of 630 Shore avenue, in an automobile accident October 14 last, was found not guilty by a jury in Quarter Sessions Court today.

Whitling was croaking a truck, the engine of which had stalled as he was driving in Brighton road near the Oliver High School. Nozakovich, the evidence showed, was driving at a rate not more than 20 miles an hour when, through the rain, he spied Whitling and applied the brakes, but to no avail. His car struck the truck and caused it to run over Whitling.

HIT BY STRAY BULLET WHILE SITTING BY ROAD

FRANKLIN, Pa., Sept. 5.—Bernard Shaffer, of Pearl, was shot in the leg by a stray bullet, as he sat in front of a filling station at Pearl, on the Pittsburgh road, 10 miles south of here. Who fired the shot was not learned.

Become Real Citizen; Register and Be Voter

Today and Thursday are important dates in the calendar of citizenship. Thursday—September 6—is the ninth Thursday preceding the date of the general election and that particular ninth Thursday is the first day for personal registration, a requisite preliminary to voting, as provided in the election laws applicable to cities.

Personal registration is not the rule in boroughs or townships, in which the law requires the register assessors to make a canvass of all residents of their districts, but to take care of those who have moved in after the enrollment was made, the register assessors are required to sit at the polling places to make assessments. Today is the second and final day for this. The final hours are 7 until 11 o'clock tonight.

Thursday is the first of three days for personal registration in the cities, the others being Tuesday, September 18, and Saturday, October 6.

Every voter should qualify himself to fulfill his duties of citizenship at the earliest opportunity. As far as personal initiative in the boroughs and townships is concerned that came yesterday and his last chance is tonight. In the four cities in the county the first opportunity comes tomorrow, and all who can do so should register. Postponing the important matter until one of the two later dates involves the danger of not doing it at all. This puts you in the way of becoming one of those careless citizens who never vote but always kick about the state of politics and government, forgetful of the fact that the polls is the place to remedy all wrongs of that nature.

Prehistorics Admired Fat Women. Why?

Boy Babies Become Deeply Attached to Stout Nurses. A Baby Is a Primitive Man.

In the caves of Southern France they find drawings by ancient people, men that lived a quarter of a million years ago at least. Some of these men, called Cro-Magnon, were remarkable artists.

They reproduced on the walls different animals drawn not with mere slight talent but with real genius.

They show us also, which is interesting, that men hundreds of thousands of years ago controlled and used the horse. For, whereas their pictures of other animals show those animals running free, their pictures on the old walls show the horse with a rope bridle around his nose.

What interests scientists and some writers of short, pithless paragraphs is the fact that these artists evidently were passionate admirers of very fat women. They make pictures of men thin, full of energy. They make animals muscular, powerful, running swiftly. But their pictures of women always show gigantically FAT individuals, their hips so wide that it must have been difficult for them to waddle around the caves. It is evident that everything was done to make them fat as possible, evident also that our ancestors of the distant day liked women when they were fat and ONLY when they were fat. For they do not condescend to make pictures of any but the very fattest.

This great admiration of fatness on the part of the cave man puzzles scientists.

WHY was fat so much admired? We know that among the bees and the ants the queen is a very big insect, much larger and fatter than ordinary insects that wait upon her. But you cannot establish any connection between the curious instinct of the bees and the fat-worshiping ideas of the cave man.

Among the Hottentot savages of our day you see still existing a preposterous admiration for very fat women.

They have in Paris in the museum of Jardin des Plantes a lifelike, exact reproduction of a Hottentot "Venus" that had come to Paris and died there. It would be immodest even to describe this lady, to say nothing of reproducing her in her lifelike monstrosity as the museum did.

It is enough to say that the lady's diameter passed all human belief, and yet it was not exaggerated.

The cave men admired very fat women because, in the first place, when famine came cannibalism was practised. Perhaps the man of ancient days said to himself, "I might as well love a fat woman, then if the worst comes to the worst I can eat her, and pull through the winter."

Some young men of this day say, "I might as well marry a rich girl; her money is nothing against her, and if the worst comes to the worst I can live on it."

It is to be remembered also that primitive peoples living in the caves were probably most of them very thin, from hunting wild animals and each other.

Fat, in their eyes, was a sign of leisure and safety. They admired it; the men couldn't have it; so they wanted women to have it. It kept up a fair average in the next generation.

You know that the very prosperous American who would seem a fool if he went around wearing a diamond or pearl necklace is much happier when he looks across the table and sees his wife wearing the necklace. He admires that on his wife, as the Cro-Magnon gentleman admired fat on his lady.

Also, and finally, bear in mind that the modern infant of today is in many ways like the full grown savage. And every well-trained nurse will tell you that small babies, especially boy babies, prefer a stout nurse. They will get along with a thin nurse if she is kind and attentive. But let them choose, and the choice is a fat nurse, one upon whose soft shoulder the head can rest without feeling any bumps.

Those men of the cave period went too far in the fat direction, there is no doubt about that. Some of their ladies, judging by the drawings, must have weighed 400 pounds. On the other hand, modern fashion goes too far in the direction of bones. Man should not foolishly admire an accumulation of fat, nor should he devote himself literally to a rag and a BONE with daubs of rouge and powder at the upper end, near the hank of hair. Aristotle's "not too much, not too little" applies to fat.

A Vanderbilt View

Many Share It.

Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr., who got a divorce for himself and married a young woman 10 minutes after she got her divorce, says divorce and remarriage is the right thing, far better than "companionate marriage."

The first marriage, says he, is a doubtful enterprise, anything from parents to emotion may cause it. The second time you ought to know what you are doing and be happier.

So you ought, and as many can testify, even more so the third, fourth and fifth times.

SQUELCH IT!

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Colors of Stars

ONE of the most interesting things that the amateur star-gazer finds out about the stars, after a little careful looking and comparison, is that they differ remarkably, and in the case of many "doubles" one may say picturesquely, in color. In these differences of color, plainly perceptible to the naked eye, lies a simple clue to the varying physical condition of the stars.

In a recent address Dr. Walter S. Adams, the director of the Mount Wilson Observatory, mentions a simple experiment easy for anybody to try, which emphasizes these differences of color and helps to interpret their significance. Take, for instance, the two stars Betelgeuse and Sirius. The unassisted eye sees plainly that Betelgeuse is red and Sirius blue-white. Now, look at these same stars through a bit of red glass; Betelgeuse will still look bright, while Sirius becomes comparatively faint; through a blue glass, however, Sirius will remain bright while Betelgeuse becomes very faint.

The explanation of this contrast of effect is that most of the light of Betelgeuse is red, and most of the light of Sirius blue. Now go a step further. "If," says Dr. Adams, "instead of using colored screens we look at the stars through a glass prism we obtain all the colors at once, drawn out into a band which is known as the spectrum. Red lies at one end and violet at the other, with yellow, green and blue lying between. The red portion of the spectrum of Betelgeuse is very bright and the blue faint, while in Sirius the reverse is the case. Hence we can reason directly that the temperature of Betelgeuse is low, and that of Sirius much higher because its blue light is so intense. Actually, the temperature of Betelgeuse is about 3,000 degrees Centigrade (5,400 Fahrenheit), and that of Sirius is about 10,000 degrees Centigrade."

Similar contrasts may be seen between Vega (intense blue-white) and Antares (fiery red), or between Aldebaran (red) and Spica (white). Without any telescopic aid whatever one may note many other striking instances of differing colors among the stars, and one may say, roughly, that where a star shows a predominance of red in its light the temperature is lower than where white or blue prevails. The temperature of the sun is about 6,000 degrees Centigrade, and its color is yellowish-white, like that of the star Capella, which resembles the sun in temperature. The bright blue-white star Rigel in Orion appears to have a temperature as high as 16,000 degrees Centigrade.

Only a small telescope is needed in order that the observer may see some of the most exquisite color contrasts existing between the constituents of double stars and multiple stars. In view of what has been said of the variation of temperature according with differences of color, these contrasts are particularly interesting when they affect stars known to be physically connected and revolving around a common center. Such stars are called binaries. One of the most beautiful of all colored doubles is the star Albireo, or Beta Cygni, at the foot of the figure called the Northern Cross in the constellation Cygnus, which lies immersed in the Milky Way and appears conspicuous in the middle of the sky on August evenings. Here a golden colored star is linked with a smaller one of a deep blue color. They are not known, however, to form a binary. A magnifying power of 20 diameters shows them gleaming side by side like twin jewels, one a topaz, the other a sapphire. Not far from them is the great star Vega, which appears in a telescope like a core of fire immersed in a blaze of intense blue light. Vega is a sun at least fifty times brighter than ours, and intrinsically more than twice as hot.

Think Beautiful Thoughts

YOU won't get into trouble if you keep the right sort of thoughts in your mind.

It is necessary to think evil before you can perform an evil deed.

What are you thinking about?

Of your work, of the good you may do, plans for right living?

If so, you are on the right track.

But if you are degrading your former high ideals you are travelling a dangerous road.

The most terrible crime, if thought of long enough, losses its horror.

To be a part in a beautiful world, with so many wonderful and interesting things to think about, should fill you with joy, such joy, that base and degrading thoughts could find no harbor in your life.

Envy is a disturbing factor in many lives.

If you cannot have what the other fellow has, enjoy what you have.

Even though you wish for things you have not, remember there are many persons who would give all they possess to be in your shoes.

Are they envying you in your possession of things you don't appreciate?

Perhaps they are and losing a lot of the enjoyment they might experience.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELS

Freedom

BY many a vexing bond and bar
Life fetters you and me!
Enslaved to caste and calendar,
But few of us are free.

For custom lays its old restraints
Along each path we go,
And habit with its folly taints
The very winds that blow.

False standards ignorance imposed
In times long passed away,
And though their vice is now disclosed,
They still, in part, hold sway.

And yet this love of freedom stirs
The universal breast,
Each bird whose lifted pinion whirs
Loves freedom first and best.

Always, through creeping centuries,
Man dreamed of freedom's day
And ever more and more he sees
The fetters fall away!

Worth While

THE first 1,500 young men to complete military camp training at Plattsburg this year gained an average of two pounds in weight in the month.

Since the building of dependable citizens is one of the chief tasks of civilization, we ought to have enough camps to train every young American, boy or girl.

Great Passages from the Bible

Directions for Charity

(Ecclesiastes 11)

CAST thy bread upon the waters: for thou shalt find it after many days.

Give a portion to seven, and also to eight; for thou knowest not what evil shall be upon the earth.

If the clouds be full of rain, they empty themselves upon the earth: and if the tree fall toward the south, or toward the north, in the place where the tree falleth, there it shall be.

He that observeth the wind shall not sow; and he that regardeth the clouds shall not reap.

As thou knowest not what is the way of the spirit, nor how the bones do grow in the womb of her that is with child: even so thou knowest not the works of God who maketh all.

In the morning sow thy seed, and in the evening withhold not thine hand: for thou knowest not whether shall prosper, either this or that, or whether they both shall be alike good.

Truly the light is sweet, and a pleasant thing it is for the eyes to behold the sun:

But if a man live many years, and rejoice in them all; yet let him remember the days of darkness; for they shall be many. All that cometh is vanity.

Rejoice, O young man, in thy youth; and let thy heart cheer thee in the days of thy youth, and walk in the ways of thine heart, and in the sight of thine eyes: but know thou, that for all these things God will bring thee into judgment.

Therefore remove sorrow from thy heart, and put away evil from thy flesh: for childhood and youth are vanity.

Tales that are Told

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS

EVERY girl and boy ought to learn to swim. The girls ought to learn when they're about 5 or 6 years old. Then they won't be so likely to take up all of so many married men's time teaching them when they get older.

Anyhow, one girl says to another (these here girls were five plus fifteen), she says, "George taught me to swim, but it took 12 lessons."

"Well," says the other one, "if he took 12 to teach you, I'll bet you a lunch I rate at least 15 lessons."

Wasn't Rash

"NOO," said Macswich, the autocrat of the little Scottish school, "ye'll recite that poem afore the class, Wullie Macsnortle, an' see that ye gie it in perfec' English."

The youthful William declaimed with such ability that the teacher was moved almost to tears. He even rewarded the diligent scholar with a half penny.

"It wis weel dune," he said; "near as weel as I could hae dune it maeself. Macalister, we'll hear ye next."

The recitation of Macalister was given in even more perfect English than the last. The dominie was delighted.

"Laddie," said he in an ecstasy of satisfaction, "if I had that hawbee back again I'd gie it tae ye!"

Not Sandpaper

WHILE we were chatting with the farmer, writes "H. R. F.," a stranger came along with what he declared to be "a chicken" which he had found along the line. "What a pity!" said the farmer; "that a young sandpiper, and you may bet its mother's looking for him this minute. Maybe she's followed you all the way. Now be a sport and take and put this fledgling just where you found it."

The stranger was off immediately on his tracks, and soon he returned, this time with a small boy.

"Just as you said, sir. We put the chick dahn on the grase and went aw'y a bit, and the mother bird cayme sure enough."

As they moved away we heard the boy—"But, faver, why do they call it a sandpiper when it's so nice and soft and smoove?"

O. O. McINTYRE

In Reno, Nev.

RENO, Nev., Sept. 5.—To stop talk, I'm not here for what one might think. This Nevada metropolis nestles among foothills of the eastern slope of the Sierre Nevada range, and is the only city I ever saw with a river running through its center like a silvery thread.

The river is the Truckee, spanned by graceful bridges with its banks and island in the center nicely parked. The residential section has broad tree-lined streets with homes set well back from the roadway. It is a city of more than 16,000, with a metropolitan dash.

They say the state is "wide open" and that Mr. Volstead's mucilage manifesto is regarded lightly. This, however, is just hearsay. One can not find out such things in a day. The chief impressions are of hospitality and zipping enthusiasm that distinguish the West.

Columns have been written of its famous "divorce colony." Reno does not care for this. They argue the only difference in dissolving the matrimonial bonds here than elsewhere is that the founders of the state decreed a six months' residence constituted full rights of citizenship.

Thus after six months you can sue for a divorce, but the divorce laws, they argue, are no more lenient than in the majority of states. Nevertheless, scores of prominent people come here monthly seeking divorce and, it is the Chamber of Commerce chuckling, a large percentage remains.

Reno suffers from gross exaggeration of the carryings-on among its divorce applicants. Those of us who have read Mark Twain and Bret Harte and expect to see one-gallused prospectors driving heavy ore-laden burros through Reno streets are quickly disillusioned.

Mining is still the dominant factor, but you would never suspect it in Reno. Its expansive streets have a majestic sweep, its buildings are formidable and architecturally smart, and the climate fits the hackneyed word "glorious." If you are starting West—don't miss Reno.

Reno was named for Gen. Jesse Reno, of Civil War fame, and is one of the gold "boom" towns that has survived. Here the sagebrush meets the pine and the desert has bloomed with a luxuriance of trees, flowers and foliage. Driving into Reno this morning the sun had tinted the skies an indescribable red, and the countryside was in a fresh and glistening loveliness. There was the scent of mountain pines and against the dawn the distant mountains were an inky purple. Sheep huddled all night in the lees of rocks were beginning to stir and sparple the green hills. Two beautifully plumed birds battled across the sky. And a rather thick skinned New Yorker who hasn't been up this early in years gazed at it all and had, for no reason at all, an inclination to blubber.

On Reno streets one sees many smartly dressed ladies who wear the unmistakable stamp of Fifth avenue. These are—although I didn't walk right up and ask them—undoubtedly rich divorce seekers. It is an ordinary occurrence for those here for what Reno calls "tickets" to fall in love with each other and despite coming here for a return to single blessedness they depart married all over again.

Add Unusual Adventures: In a Reno bank this afternoon, with no identification save an ordinary visiting card, I cashed a sizable check almost as rapidly as I am setting it down here. Try that some rainy afternoon on a New York bank without a net.

* * *

There are few cities where worshipers of scenic beauty have such a wide range of views as this. Perhaps it would grow monotonous after a short while, but as a departing fireman I'd like to play around awhile. Everything is so lovely, including the banks.

In the heart of Reno is Idlewild Park, with a swimming pool and the most unique collection of wild game and domestic birds to be found anywhere.

Everybody has a healthy tan. But here men are men and women, we suppose, are glad of it.

Where Do Thoughts Go?

By DR. FRANK CRANE.

Where do thoughts go? That is a greater mystery than where thoughts come from.

Out of the unknown. Out of the infinite. Where from we cannot tell, but a thought strikes us in the brain as a bullet strikes us in the forehead, and all life is changed.

Everyone who has had any experience in composition knows that thoughts cannot become at by seeking for them. There must be inspiration of some sort. The spirit of man must be invaded by another spirit which comes bringing new visions.

Where does that vision go when we lose it?

A thought is not a powerless thing. It is potent. It changes the face of the world.

The Woolworth Building was once but a thought, the City of New York is a collection of thoughts. Every visible work is the outcome of a thought.

The difference between the genius and the common man is not that the common man has no wonderful thoughts, but that he cannot express them, while a genius can.

Great men, such as Jesus and Socrates, did not originate ideas, they expressed the ideas that were common to us all. We hardly knew we had them until they told us. The best testimony to their leadership is the fact that the common heart of man replies Amen to all they say.

We have all had mighty thoughts that have escaped us. Where did they go?

Some have held that the brain retains all that has gone through it. It only needs some occasions or some connection to call forth the past. But many of us are conscious of having had great thoughts and are also conscious that they have escaped us.

Who shall invent any kind of an apparatus that shall keep a register of our thoughts, a sort of card index to which we can go in time of barrenness?

OH, THESE WOMEN!

By LEOLA ALLARD

A SNAPPY little girl in a Fifty-seventh street beauty parlor said proudly that she had given 18 "finger waves" that day and had six more appointments coming. "And I love my work—that's why I do it well, and people ask for me," she said proudly.

"I tell you it takes women to do beauty work on women," said the girl, shaking her head and looking very serious. "Men don't worry about their customers. They think women are silly over their looks anyway, but women KNOW how important it is."

There aren't any more grandmothers, in the old-fashioned sense of the word. And, of course, no more knitting, and now there aren't going to be any more wars.

But the divorce courts will continue to do more than their quota of business.

Saw some little pink silk petticoats in a glass showcase in a big department store.

"Oh," I said with surprise, "I didn't know anyone wore them!"

The clerk, sniffing the air and raising her eyebrows, said: "Huh. They came back strong this season. Everybody is wearing them.'

But I could have started a lively argument on that score. I have just gone through a windy week in which the tiny pleated, thin silk skirts of the girls were hoisted daily above their rolled garters, and I want to say right now that what they revealed was not petticoats, but little silk panties sparse like trunks—

If the girls are wearing petticoats, it's the mail order trade.

A woman psychologist of London says that men are better contented because they are easily pleased with "homely things."

Y-e-s—they are! When you see a man with a "homely thing" he doesn't look either pleased or happy.

"Social success passes for happiness with many women," says the same doctor. It IS happiness for many, I know one who lost her husband and children because social success meant more to her than they did.

I knew another woman whose husband always stayed home and whose sons, even after they married, were always glad of the opportunity to get back to mother's house. I was having luncheon at that home one day when a woman phoned who was that day giving a luncheon for this very woman, and she wondered, it being an hour late, why she didn't appear.

The reason she didn't was that she was having such a good time at home with her family that she forgot it. She lives in Denver!

Doubly Good

THE production of ice cream in the United States has increased 160 per cent in the last 10 years, or a good deal more than 10 times as fast as the population.

So many foods that we like are said to be not good for us that it is pleasant to see the growth of this palatable exception.
